The "Star" on the Conduct of the United States Toward Cuba—Its Bearing on the Alabama Question.

LONDON, Tuesday, June 29.

The Star, to-day, commenting on the reported departure from New-York of Colonel RYAN'S expedition for Cuba, brings the circumstances to bear upon the question of the claims now pending between the United States and Great Britain. It says: "We are interested in the conduct of the United States Government in this matter. America now stands in relation to Cuba exactly as England did in relation to the Southern Confederacy. Her Neutrality laws must be thoroughly and effectively enforced, or she will lose the hold she has gained on public opinion, which ensures the fair consideration of the Alabama claims. The Alabama escaped unarmed, with an ordinary merchantman's crew on board, and we are justly held to have incurred a high degree of responsibility for the consequences. The departure of a party of 800 men from New-York harbor, as far as can be judged from present accounts of the affair, appears to be an infraction of neutrality just as flagrant as the escape of the Alabama, and one which could have been much more easily prevented."

The Fenian Meeting in Dublin—Defiant Speeches.

DUBLIN, Tuesday, June 29.

A meeting was held in this City last night to urge upon the Government the release of the Fenian prisoners. Nearly four thousand people were present. Mr. BUTT, a prominent lawyer, made a speech, in course of which he said, the motto of all true Irishmen ought to be, "Bide your time; put your trust in God, and keep your powder dry." If the British Government persisted in keeping these men incarcerated, all its professions of conciliation would be useless. Mr. WILLIAMS, of Dungarvan, made an impassioned speech. He declared that the Fenian prisoners would not accept mercy. They demanded justice from the Ministers. If the latter refused it, let the blood be upon their own heads. He would not, however, advocate a resort to the sword, for that doctrine was now out of time.

Crops in California and Oregon—Discovery of New Silver Mines on the Colorado River—Survey of the Northern Pacific Railroad—More Earthquake Shocks in Washington Territory.

SAN FRANCISCO, Monday, June 28.

Information from the principal grain districts in California indicates that the crop, though large, is below the average yield per acre. A considerable portion, either through thinness or rust, will not pay for harvesting. In Oregon the crop is greatly in excess of any previous year, except in the Walla-Walla region.

Discoveries of rich silver mines between White Pine and the head of navigation on the Colorado River are announced. One ledge is described of very rich ore thirty feet wide. Wood, water and grass are abundant in the neighborhood of the new mines, which are situated not far from the line of the survey of the Southern Pacific Railroad.

Prominent merchants are considering the propriety of calling a mass meeting to organize measures for the protection of the Chinese immigration daily arriving here.

A dispatch from Portland, Oregon, reports that the Indians on the Alsea Reservation are arming and leaving, because of their dissatisfaction at the change from civil to military supervision.

A party of gentlemen who propose to make a survey of the Northern Pacific Railroad left San Francisco to-day for Portland, Oregon, and Olympia, Washington Territory, accompanied by THOMAS W. CANFIELD, General Agent of the Company. After examining the bays and harbors of Puget Sound, the party will proceed to Walla-Walla, thence northeasterly to Couer d'Alene and Pend d'Oreille Lakes, up the Columbia to Montana, passing by Deer Lodge Valley to Gallatin City, Helena, and Cadot's and Mullan's Passes in the Rocky Mountains. After exploring the Passes and the Upper Yellow Stone River, the party will go down that river, or the Missouri, to Fort Clark, where they expect to meet another expedition from Lake Superior.

Senators WADE and CONKLING left for the East to-day overland. WM. H. SEWARD left Promontory Point for San Francisco this afternoon. He declined an invitation from Sacramento City to attend the Fourth of July celebration in that place.

JAPAN AND CHINA.

Reports from Admiral Rowan—Early Renewal of the Civil War in Japan—Proposed Attack by the Mikado on Enomoto's Position and Army—Arrival of Minister J. Ross Browne at Shanghae.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Tuesday, June 29.

Admiral ROWAN reports to the Department from Yokohama, under date of May 13, the expected renewal of the civil war in Japan, the season for military and naval operations having arrived. The Mikado's Government had determined to dislodge ENOMOTO from his defences in the vicinity of Hakodadi. ENOMOTO is said to hold a strong position to the northward and eastward of Hakodadi, with troops in good discipline, well fed, armed and equipped, and under the drilling of French officers, which they had received during the Winter, it was thought the Government would have some trouble in dislodging him. One of ENOMOTO'S vessels, the Ashuelot, had entered the harbors of Yeddo and Yokohama, took a survey of the vessels and naval preparations of the Mikado, and retired without molestation from the fleet or forts.

A squadron of ships, including the Stonewall, was equipped for sea in Yeddo Bay. During the inspection the flag-ship blew up with much loss of life. There were rumors of the Stonewall's machinery being out of order, and of her having sustained injury from grounding.

Rear-Admiral ROWAN expresses the opinion that all that it wanted to make Japan strong is peace and loyalty among the Princes and smaller Daimios, the Mikado being unquestionably the supreme ruler of Japan, temporally and spiritually, and the Tycoonate abolished.

The Admiral reports under date of May 1, the distribution of the vessels of his squadron as follows:

Flagship Piscataqua, Commander English, at Shanghae; Oneida, Captain Creighton, at Hong Kong (having returned from Siam;) Monocacy, Commander Parker, at Shanghae; Iroquois, Lieutenant-Commander Mahan, left Amoy April 24 for Nagasaki; Ashuelot, Commander Law, under orders to Nagasaki; Aroostook, Lieutenant-Commander Bradford, at Hioga; Maumee, Lieutenant-Commander Cushing, ordered to Nagasaki; Unadilla, Lieutenant-Commander Yates, at Hong Kong; Idaho, Lieutenant-Commander Hooker, at Nagasaki. The health of the squadron is reported to be excellent.

The Monocacy left Hong Kong April 12 for Shanghae, giving passage to J. ROSS BROWNE, United States Minister to China. On her way up she anchored at Swatow, where she was visited by the Taoti, who received a salute. He seemed to be much pleased with his reception. Amoy, Foo-Choo and Ningpo were also visited, and Mr. BROWNE was landed at Shanghae April 27.

The Oneida left Hong Kong on the 6th of March, and arrived at Bangkok on the 15th of March. Captain CREIGHTON had an interview with the Prime Minister and an audience with the King of Siam. Captain CREIGHTON was invited to participate in the festival of elephant hunting, and a steamer was placed at his disposal. He, with ten officers of the Oneida, went to Anguthia, fifty miles up the river, and witnessed the elephant hunt. They were treated with great courtesy and hospitality by the Government officials. The Government of Siam express a great desire for the cultivation of friendly feelings with the United States. The Oneida also visited the French settlement of Saigon, and returned to Hong Kong April 15.

MAINE POLITICS.

The Democratic State Convention at Bangor—Nomination of General Smith, of Waterville, for Governor.

BANGOR, Me., Tuesday, June 29.

The State Democratic Convention met here to-day. Six hundred and sixteen delegates were present. The Convention organized by the choice of C. P. KIMBALL, of Portland, as President, a Vice-President from each county, four Secretaries, and the appointment of the usual Committees. An informal ballot resulted in the nomination of C. P. KIMBALL, of Portland, for Governor, he receiving 445 votes against 71 for all others. The Convention then made the nomination of Mr. KIMBALL unanimous, but he declined to accept, and another vote was taken with the following result: Whole number of votes cast, 330; of which General FRANKLIN SMITH, of Waterville, received 217. The nomination was made unanimous, and the President was instructed to notify General SMITH of his nomination.

Resolutions were adopted declaring that the Democratic Party of Maine are unalterably opposed to the present protective tariff system, so destructive to commercial ship building and the general business interests and prosperity of the country; reaffirming their adherence to the doctrines of free trade, the maintenance of the rights of States unimpaired, equality in taxation, including United States bonds, a uniform currency, opposition to centralization of power in the General Government; in favor of an economical and just administration of public affairs in accordance with the principles of the Constitution of the United States; declaring that the history and record of the Democratic Party furnishes a sure guarantee that in the event of their ascendency, they will settle all questions which agitate the public mind in such a manner as to conduce to the welfare of the public; that the gallant soldiers and sailors, who fought the battles of the Union from patriotic motives, are entitled to the gratitude and support of the people, and indorsing the nomination of General SMITH for Governor.

The Convention then adjourned sine die.

State Temperance Convention—N. G. Hichborn Nominated for Governor.

PORTLAND, Me., Tuesday, June 29.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

At the afternoon session, in view of the completion of the organization of a Temperance Party, seven delegates were appointed to attend the National Temperance Convention in Chicago, Sept. 1. On the raising of the question of the appointment of a State Committee, FRED. N. DOW, son of General NEAL DOW, resigned his position on that Committee, he considering the action of the Convention as detrimental to the cause of temperance. Major SHOREY, of the Bath Times, also resigned, expressing similar sentiments. B. C. JORDAN and Dr. MORNEN also resigned, that the Convention might be free in choosing a new committee.

Rev. W. P. MORRILL offered the prohibition resolution of the Bangor Republican platform, which was almost unanimously laid on the table.

The Committee on Nominations presented the name of N. G. HICHBORN, of Stockton, as candidate for Governor, which was enthusiastically accepted.

Reported Loss of All But One of the Exploring Party in the Colorado Canon.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Tuesday, June 29.

The Republican has a special dispatch from Green River City, Wyoming Territory, dated yesterday, which says that one of the members of the celebrated Powell exploring party had just reached that point, having escaped, after incredible hardships, out of the canon of the Colorado. He reports that the whole party, excepting himself, perished while attempting to cross the rapids. He had crossed above, and from the west bank witnessed the frightful disaster which left him alone, 500 miles from the nearest settlement, without supplies, and almost without hope, not daring to leave the stream lest he should get lost. He ascended the bank to this point, the crossing of the Pacific road, where he received such attention as he required. To this the Republican appends the following note:

"The fact that the dispatch fails to give the name of the survivor of the expedition leads us to hope that the statement may have been told by some half-starved hunter who wished to enlist sympathy. Undeniably, it is possible, even perhaps probable. If half the stories of travelers are true, the rapids of the Colorado can only be crossed by birds."

THE RECENT STORMS.

Damage to Property in Various Sections of the Country—Extensive Floods.

HARTFORD, Conn., Tuesday, June 29.

The damage by the storm of Monday in many parts of the State was quite serious, principally by floods in the streams. Along the upper portion of the Naugatuck Valley the storm was very severe. On the Naugatuck Railroad at Camp Mills 200 feet of embankment were washed away; a protection wall at Plymouth was destroyed; fifty feet of track at the Manham Pond in Waterbury were washed away, and two hundred feet of an embankment near Ausmis Stone Bridge, at Daytonville, reported useless. At Litchfield Station the water rose eight or ten feet in an hour, and the total rise was fifteen feet. The Highway Bridge there was carried away and PAGE & KEENEY'S Paper Mill badly damaged. At Walcottville the damage is about $50,000. The dam of the Coe Bras Company was carried away and damaged to the amount of $5,000. TURNER, SEYMOUR and JUDD lose about $5,000 by injury to stock and the stopping of business. Some factories will be shut up for a month in consequence of the destruction of the raceways. The rain fell from 3 to 5 o'clock, but the flood did not come till 7 o'clock P.M. At Winsted, the Clarke House was flooded and much damage to the dams was done. At West Cornwall the storm was terrific. The small streams running into the Housatonic rose to an unprecedented height, and carried off the water tube of Gold's Mills, and caused damage to the dam. A channel forty feet in width was cut by the freshet between PRATT & FOSTER'S store and COCHRANE & SHERWOOD'S tinshop. The shower extended a little above Falls Village, on the Housatonic road, causing much damage to the bridges and track. The roads are badly washed in the vicinity of New-Hartford, and the bridges are swept away. The mills at Ansonia are obliged to stop work, as the dam is gone. The damage to the Naugatuck Railroad is immense and several bridges are reported down, and regular travel will be interrupted for several days. The storm was also very severe in Andover, Vernon and Manchester, in Polland County.

WATERBURY, Conn., Tuesday, June 29.

The heavy rain of Monday afternoon was very disastrous to the Naugatuck Railroad. The river rose very suddenly, destroying the protection wall to the railroad at Plymouth, washing away two hundred feet of the railroad embankment at Camp's Mills, fifty feet at the Manchester Pond in this city, and two hundred feet of the embankment at Ansonia. The stone bridge at Daytonville is reported useless. All the bridges between Walcottville and Winsted are washed away. It will be several days before the regular trains can run again.

The Testimonial to Mr. Gilmore—A Second Peace Jubilee.

BOSTON, Tuesday, June 29.

The testimonial to Mr. GILMORE at the Coliseum this afternoon was very successful, both in the numbers present and the general excellence of the performances. The grand chorus numbered over seven thousand voices, with an orchestra nearly equal to that during the Jubilee week. The programme embraced several of the most popular selections then given, and the enthusiasm manifested in the former representation was repeated to-day. The expressed opinion of musical critics present was, that the pieces to-day were more even and effectively rendered than at any previous performance. The Anvil Chorus, with the cannon and bell-ringing accompaniment to that and the "Star-Spangled Banner" and other patriotic pieces, excited the audience to a tremendous pitch of enthusiasm. The grand choral "Old Hundred," in which the entire audience joined, closed the performance. Mr. GILMORE will realize about $25,000 from the benefit.

In the United States District Court this morning, Judge GILES delivered an oral opinion in the case of the United States against the steamship Cuba, libeled on information of having brought on the voyage from Havana 45,000 cigars not placed on the manifest. The counsel for owners gave notice of appeal.

The Recent Atrocities in Kansas—Conflicting Reports—Constant Trouble from Roving Bands of Savages—More Troops Asked for by the Governor of Kansas.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, June 29.

Surveyor-General BABCOCK, of Kansas, in a letter to President GRANT, dated June 20, says that Governor HARVEY had visited in person all the settlements where the Indian enormities were recently committed, and ascertained that more than thirty persons in all had been killed. Agent HOAG places the number at about twenty. At the time of the outbreak four surveying parties were in the field. All had returned. Two of them report that they saw no Indians; the third that they saw several small bands, and the fourth party say that they were attacked by a small band, which fled after the surveying party had fired four or five shots. All the surveying party were frightened, and declined returning to the field at present. The Indians are not combined, and do not intend to bring on a regular war. There are several small bands scouring over the country for mischief, and intend to kill and plunder without taking too many chances. Settlers and trains are in great danger from these parties. General SCHOFIELD has comparatively few troops for so wide an extent of country. The Governor of Kansas, therefore, asks the President for additional troops; if they cannot be furnished, then he requests authority to raise a regiment of volunteers, and Surveyor-General BABCOCK joins in this request.

The Bequest of Dr. Rush to the Philadelphia Library—Meeting of the Stockholders.

PHILADELPHIA, Tuesday, June 29.

The stockholders of the Philadelphia Library Company held a meeting to-day to decide as to the acceptance of the bequest of Dr. RUSH. It was stated that the estate was appraised at $1,067,000. Much opposition was evinced against the site selected on South Broad-street for a new library. The executor stated that if the bequest was not accepted he would proceed to erect a building for the Ridgeway Library on the lot already purchased. Mr. FRALEY, after some strong remarks regarding the non-acceptance of the bequest, offered a resolution that all resolutions offered be referred to a committee of six stockholders and six directors of the Philadelphia Library, and that the whole matter be postponed for the present, and this Committee report at the meeting to be held on the first Tuesday in October. Carried.

He was caught by the body, immediately below the breast bone. The proprietor of the shop was luckily present, and succeeded in releasing him from his perilous position. Surgical aid was immediately summoned when it was found that the instrument had penetrated to the depth of about an inch, but fortunately had injured no vital part.—San Francisco Bulletin, June 18.

CUBA.

THE FILLIBUSTERS.

More About the Expedition—It is Believed to Have Sailed from Long Island—The Armament and Officers—The Cost of the Expedition.

It was announced in yesterday's TIMES that the report of the sailing of a Cuban expedition on board the steamer Quaker City was a total fabrication, information to that effect having been obtained from the United States Marshal's office. So far as the vessel named is concerned the contradiction appears to have been correct; but we have received new facts which show that there was more truth than fiction in the statement that an expedition did leave this City on Saturday evening last, whose destination was the Island of Cuba. Our information is derived from a person who held official connection with the leaders of the expedition.

It is represented that two parties of fillibusters were taken on board tugboats, which proceeded to Gardiner's Island Bay, on the extreme end of Long Island, where ocean vessels were ordered to meet them and convey them to Cuba. Our informant states that Colonel JOHN WHITEHEAD BYRON, commander of the First Cuban Regiment, called a meeting of his officers on Friday evening, in the basement saloon on the southwest corner of Broadway and Eighth-street, at which he told them to be in readiness to take their departure on the following evening, giving them instructions to collect their men at the East River Park, in East Sixty-second-street. They accordingly assembled at the rendezvous named, whence they embarked on board the tug-boat H. D. Cool, to the number of 145 men, whose strength was further increased by 78 Cubans, under command of Colonel LAFERO. The tug was loaded with a number of boxes and barrels, which were subsequently found to contain water and provisions. In company with the H. D. Cool was the tugboat Wm. H. Webb, which carried several members of the Cuban Junta, who were to see the recruit safely off. After the H. D. Cool started she steamed up to Jones' Wood, where about twenty-five additional men were taken on board. The tug then proceeded up the East River and Long Island Sound, followed by the Webb, which was used as a scout boat to save her consort from being captured. On the passage up, Colonel RYAN and Mr. CARPENTER, a newspaper correspondent, were transferred from the Webb to the Cool. On reaching Hart's Island both boats came to anchor and remained there all night. On Sunday morning they separated, the Webb returning to this City, and the Cool going in the direction of Gardiner's Island, near New-London, which was the place appointed for the meeting of the expeditionary forces. They were divided into three parties for the purpose of avoiding detection. On the trip the tugboat fell short of provisions and water, which caused considerable dissatisfaction among the men. About half an hour after her arrival in the bay she was joined by the tugboat John Chase, with 225 men on board, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel CURRIER, of Colonel RYAN'S regiment. The officers on both vessels subsequently held a consultation in regard to the best course to pursue in searching for the steamer Catherine Whiting, which was expected to be in waiting for them. It was decided to place 150 men on the Cool, which was the largest boat, and to have the Chase look after the missing steamer. During the day two large sloops made their appearance at the island, carrying arms, ammunition and equipments for the expedition. They had on board sixteen pieces of artillery, including six 6-pounders to go with cavalry, six 12-pounders and four 20-pounder Parrott guns; also, 4,000 Remington breech-loading rifles, 1,000,000 round of cartridges, equipments for 400 cavalry, together with 8,000 uniforms for infantry—the latter consisting of blue blouses, gray pants and felt hats. At 10 o'clock on Sunday morning the Cool left the island for New-London, seventeen miles distant, to obtain water and provisions. The trip occupied all day, owing to the dense fog which prevailed. About forty men deserted the boat after her arrival at New-London, having become dissatisfied with their officers, who endeavored to detain them without success. Some of these men stayed at New-London, but the majority left for this City, coming by the cars and by the City of Boston steamer. While the latter was passing within four miles of Gardiner's Island, a large side-wheel steamer was seen in the bay, having a red light at her stern. It was conjectured that she was one of the vessels which the Cuban Junta had engaged for the expedition. Two smaller vessels were observed alongside of her. At the time our informant left the Bay on the tugboat Cool the fillibusters were momentarily expecting to be joined by 300 men under the command of General SPEAR, of Fenian notoriety. It was reported that he had left Philadelphia with his men on Friday evening, taking the cars for Boston, whence they were to embark on a tugboat and proceed to Gardiner's Island. The entire expedition was estimated at 700 men. Its fitting out is said to have cost the Junta over $225,000. The officers of the First Regiment were ascertained to be as follows:

Colonel, J. W. BYRON, formerly of the Irish Brigade; Lieutenant-Colonel, O'LEARY, an ex-Union officer; Major COURTNEY, late Assistant Adjutant-General of the Twenty-fifth Army Corps; Captains T. F. O'NEIL, EDWARD MURTAGH, WM. H. LINDSEY, CHARLES KEARNS, COLTER and T. MCCUE. During the trip of the tugboat Cool Colonel RYAN was heard to remark that he was in the City of New-York in disguise, and met the Marshal's officers several times after his escape. He said that he assumed the dress of a policeman and of a sailor.

General D. D. GOICOURIA, the reputed leader of the expedition, who was taken on board the Catherine Whiting, was brought before Commissioner OSBORN yesterday for examination. The complaint against him was made by HENRY W. FRENCH, of Bridgeport, who testified that he enlisted in an expedition to go to Cuba on the 1st of June, and that he knew General DOMINGO GOICOURIA to be the leader of the expedition. General GOICOURIA was required to give $5,000 bail to answer the charge and $3,000 to keep the peace.

Speech of the New Captain-General—What he Expects—Skirmishes in the Cinco Villas District.

HAVANA, Tuesday, June 29.

Don ESPINAR, late Acting Captain-General, gave a dinner yesterday in honor of General DE RODAS. The latter made a speech. He declared that he came to the Island counting on the aid of 50,000 volunteers in the suppression of the rebellion. Complete harmony exists between the new Captain-General and the volunteers.

The Spanish Admiral has returned from a cruise.

General LESCA is actively pursuing the bands of insurgents in the Cinco Villas district, and has frequent encounters with them. The Diario says he places the volunteer cavalry, composed of native Cubans, in the front rank as the defenders of the integrity of the Island.

It is supposed that the insurgents executed the entire company of Spanish soldiers captured at Sabana Nueve. The charred corpse of a Spanish officer was found in the ruins of one of the houses

Suit Against an Insurance Company—A Peculiar Case.

From the Boston Herald, June 29.

The docket of the present term of the Superior Court, civil session, contained one case which is of interest, as it involves points the decision of which were peculiarly unfortunate to a worthy woman. The circumstances are as follows: During 1866 a Mr. CALVIN PERRY was employed as a station master at South Natick, on the Boston and Worcester Railroad, and on the 11th of December, of that same year, while engaged in his duties, had his arm crushed between two cars. He was immediately removed to the Massachusetts General Hospital, where he received the best of medical aid, but gradually failed, and on the 19th of March, 1867, death ensued from his injuries. On the 5th of October previous to the accident, Mr. PERRY took out a policy against loss of life or personal injury, in the Provident Life Insurence and Investment Company of Illinois for $3,000, one of the provisions in which policy was that the said $2,000 "should be paid to MARY ANN PERRY or her legal representatives, within ninety days after sufficient proof that the assured, after the date hereof and before the expiration of this policy, shall have sustained personal injury caused by any accident within the meaning of this policy and the conditions hereunto annexed, and such injuries shall occasion death within ninety days from the happening thereof; sufficient proof being furnished this Company."

Upon application after the death of her husband, Mrs. PERRY was refused the money, when she commenced a suit to recover. The Company had placed their refusal to pay this sum on the sole ground that Mr. PERRY did not die within ninety days after the accident occurred, but that at the time of his death he had lived ninety days and nine hours after he was injured; and when the case was brought before the Supreme Judicial Court it was decided that the Company had, in the computation of time, a sufficient legal defence to the action.

Notwithstanding the turn the above suit had taken, Mrs. PERRY made another demand upon the Company, this time under another clause, which provided that if the assured sustained any personal injury, which should not be fatal, but should absolutely and totally disable him from the prosecution of his usual employment, upon satisfactory proof being furnished the Company, they would pay the sum of $10 a week for a period not exceeding twenty-six weeks. These facts Mrs. PERRY had no difficulty in establishing, but the corporation refused to pay any sum, on the ground that the accident was fatal, and that the terms of the policy made this fact a legal defence to the claim.

A trial by jury was waived, and at the hearing upon an agreed statement of facts, Judge REED ruled that, upon the construction of the whole policy, the plaintiff was entitled to recover, and ordered payment to the plaintiff in the sum of $141 71. The defendant corporation filed exceptions to this decision, which, if allowed, will go before the full bench of the Supreme Court at the November term.

WASHINGTON.

The Tennessee Canvass—President Grant and the Cabinet for Stokes—Texas Politics—The Fisher-Bradley Case—Personal.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, June 29.

There is no question of the fact that the President and a majority, if not all, of the Cabinet have determined that the shape of affairs in the Tennessee canvass, justifies them in allowing their sympathies to side with the greater body of Republicans who are supporting Colonel STOKES for Governor. The success of the Senter movement now promises to hand the State over completely to the power of the Rebel Democracy, and to place the Union men of the State in the position of the Union men of Maryland, that the Administration can scarcely afford to ignore the condition of affairs, and it is therefore exceedingly probable that if its influence is exercised, that it will be thrown in support of its undoubted sympathies.

THE BRADLEY-FISHER SUIT.

The suit of BRADLEY vs. FISHER for trespass on the case was dismissed to-day by Judge WYLIE. The bill of exceptions on the action for libel which was thrown out yesterday was arranged, and another bill of exceptions on the suit of to-day was also made out. BRADLEY appeals to the District Supreme Court, and, failing there, will seek compensation from the Supreme Court of the United States.

PERSONAL.

Secretary FISH left for New-York this evening, to be absent about a week. He will attend the Commencement exercises of Columbia College. Among the arrivals here to-day are Ex-Governor WARD and Ex-Congressman HALSEY, of New-Jersey, and General H. A. BARNUM, of New-York. The latter goes hence to the Gettysburg Monument dedication. Postmaster-General CRESWELL is absent at Elkton, Md., but will return to-morrow night. Secretary COX returned from Ohio this evening. Secretary ROBESON left for his home at Camden, N. J., this evening, and will return on Monday next. Having been summoned hither without previous warning, he was unable to arrange his business affairs, and he will consequently devote a few days to this duty before settling himself down to his work permanently. Mr. ROBESON enters upon his new position with energy and enthusiasm, and exhibits a determination to make himself master of his duties in a very brief space of time. We have the two JOHNSONS here now, REVERDY JOHNSON having arrived this evening. Both say they are on private business, and very little notice is taken of either of them. General SPINNER, Treasurer of the United States, returned this evening and received the sympathies of a large number of friends on his recent family affliction. The late Mrs. SPINNER was well known in Washington, and was widely respected and beloved. Commissioner DELANO leaves here day after to-morrow to be gone a short time. GEORGE W. EMORY, who succeeds Mr. NOAH as Supervisor in Tennessee, left to-night for that State.

DISCHARGE OF CLERKS.

The State Department finds itself compelled to reduce its clerical force, in consequence of the deficiency of the appropriations. Eighteen of the temporary clerks, whose services are absolutely required, will have to be dismissed on the 1st of July, there being no money whatever to pay them if retained.

TEXAS POLITICS.

Mr. GLENN, nephew of Ex-Secretary STANTON, has written a letter on the politics of that State in reply to the recent communication of Mr. PASCAL on the same subject. Mr. GLENN sustains DAVIS against HAMILTON, and is the official representative here of the Republican Party in Texas. Five or six Union Republican papers in the State support DAVIS.

THE CROPS IN WEST VIRGINIA.

A gentleman who has returned from a trip through West Virginia says the crops in that State are in a flourishing condition, the wheat especially being well advanced. It is expected that the harvest will be all in within nine or ten days.

THE PATENT OFFICE.

At the Patent Office during the week ending to-day 397 applications for patents were presented, 75 caveats were filed, and 302 patents were ordered to issue on the 6th prox. During the last six months 10,803 applications and 2,405 caveats have been filed. During the same period 6,998 patents issued, showing the average applications favorably acted upon to be 64¾ per cent. of the whole number.

COMMENCEMENT AT GEORGETOWN.

President GRANT has accepted an invitation of Georgetown College Faculty to attend the Commencement exercises and distribute premiums on Thursday next. Ex-President JOHNSON, who has a son there, will also be present.

A METROPOLITAN UNIVERSITY.

COLUMBIA COLLEGE.

To-day its One Hundred and Sixteenth Commencement—Its History, its Alumni, its Departments, and its Seven Hundred and Fifty-three Students—Free Education.

AN OLD INSTITUTION.

One of the very oldest institutions of learning in the United States is Columbia College, of the City of New-York. Yet old as it is, and long and honorable the list of its Alumni, it is a remarkable fact that few people in New-York are aware of anything in regard to the College, except, perhaps, its continued existence. This ignorance and indifference cannot be charged to the management of the College—though that has not always been wise—but is rather due to the fact that Columbia College exists as only one of the institutions of a great commercial City, a City without homogeneity and almost indeed without local pride, or, if we may use the term, local esprit de corps. The newspapers of the city have been in the habit of giving it merely the barest and briefest mention, and then only when reporting the fact of the occurrence of its annual festivities. So it has come to pass that knowledge of the College and its advances has been confined to a comparatively small portion of the public, and that portion composed in large part of the Alumni of the institution, who have evinced their own estimate of the virtues of their Alma Mater by sending their sons to be under her gracious guidance. We find, for instance, in looking over one of the late catalogues of the Alumni that from 1801 to 1851 eight ANTHONS have graduated at the College; from 1791 to 1867, thirteen ANDERSONS; from 1770 to 1867, eleven GRAHAMS; from 1797 to 1866, eighteen LAWRENCES; from 1760 to 1838, fourteen LIVINGSTONS; from 1768 to 1863, fourteen MORRISES; from 1758 to 1867, twenty-nine OGDENS; from 1792 to 1867, thirteen POSTS; from 1770 to 1863, eleven PELLS; from 1798 to 1849, eight RHINELANDERS, and so on. These are names well known to New-Yorkers, and the graduates in many cases represent succeeding generations of one family.

It is likely that this popular ignorance of Columbia College will continue unless the institution receive some special and more adequate attention than has hitherto been given it.

SOME FACTS OF ITS HISTORY.

To-day this venerable institution holds its one hundred and sixteenth Commencement. Let us, therefore, improve the occasion to glance at some facts of its history and consider what Columbia College has done in the past and is now doing for the cause of education in America. But before we look back, perhaps it will enhance the reader's conception of the importance of the institution if we stop to say that the present number of students in its different "schools" is between seven and eight hundred.

Columbia College was founded in 1754, and in its original royal charter received the name of "King's College," which name it held until the Colonies separated from England, when it chose a title more in harmony with republican institutions and the spirit the College itself had displayed during the War of Independence. In the vestry of Trinity Church were gathered the first students. They were seven in number, and the family names of some of them are still familiar to New-Yorkers—as for instance, ISAAC OGDEN, SAMUEL VERPLANCK, PHILLIP VAN CORTLANDT: all of these seven young men rose in after life to positions of importance. Among the Governors of the College were the ministers of the churches of the different denominations in the City; so that, though the institution was born in the vestry of a Church of England Church, and its chief Governor ex officio was the Archbishop of Canterbury, it was not in its conception a distinctively Episcopal institution. Afterward, when Trinity Church gave the College the property east of Broadway, where Park-place now is, it made the gift conditional on the fact that the President of the College should always be a member of, and in full communion with, the Episcopal Church. Just so far the College is necessarily Episcopal, and no farther. The service of the Episcopal church is used at the College chapel, and an Episcopalian clergyman officiates as chaplain, but we believe there is nothing that compels the use of the forms of the Episcopal Church. The religious character of the College was very unfortunately brought forward in the discussion over the proposed election of Professor WOLCOTT GIBBS to its chair of Physics, some twelve or fifteen years ago. Professor GIBBS was not elected but Professor RICHARD S. MCCULLOH was. Professor GIBBS was not long after elected to a similar chair at Harvard. Professor MCCULLOH during the war, ran off to the South, and was dismissed the institution. But as a matter of fact, one of the members of the Faculty had been an out-and-out materialist, and since that day the College has had several Professors who probably would hesitate about signing the Thirty-nine Articles, or, in fact, any other known religious creed. The religious opinions of students are not interfered with nor any attempt made to direct them in any particular denominational course. Some of the best students the College has had have been Jews, members of the old families of their race in the City.

The first President of the College was Rev. SAMUEL JOHNSON, D. D., with his degree from Oxford. He had been for several years doing general missionary work in the hard field of Connecticut Puritanism; having been, indeed, the only Church of England clergyman in all that Colony. The wooden-nutmeg State did not take kindly in those days to prelacy, and Dr. JOHNSON, though he was supported by the good wishes of the dignitaries of his Church in England, and was, moreover, a scholar and a gentleman, as well as a patient Christian, was glad enough to gather together his seven pupils in the Trinity Vestry, and to forget the impregnable Puritanism of Connecticut. The next President was Dr. MYLES COOPER, who had rather a stormy administration. He was a royalist, and very English in his sympathies. So when the Colonies began to talk of their rights and their wrongs, and separation was threatened, the Doctor was indiscreet enough—or bold enough, perhaps—to take up his pen on the English side. The College, which was decidedly American in tone and feeling, was incensed, and the place became too hot for him; and so in 1775 he resigned. It is related, by the way, that the Doctor found his royalist arguments ably and convincingly answered in one of the City papers, and eventually discovered that his skillful opponent was no other than ALEXANDER HAMILTON, at that time one of the students of the College. Under one of the sycamore trees, which still remained standing when the College grounds were given up to trade, twelve years ago, the same ALEXANDER HAMILTON read the Declaration of Independence. During the heat and bustle of the war the College buildings were given up for military purposes, and the academic exercises were suspended. It was when the war was over and a new charter had been obtained from the State of New-York that the name of Columbia College was substituted for King's College.

SOME OF ITS GRADUATES.

In the list of students and graduates we find many names conspicuous in the history of the State and country. As early as 1764 was graduated RICHARD HARRISON, who received afterward the LL. D. from the University of Oxford, and who was a prominent delegate to the Federal Constitutional Convention in 1787, and also held other important offices. The same year was graduated JOHN JAY, whose name and services to the country are familiar to everybody. In subsequent years previous to the close of the century, Robert Benson, Robert R. Livingston, Gouverneur Morris, Gulian Verplanck, Alexander Hamilton, De Witt Clinton, Rev. Dr. John M. Mason, Clement C. Moore, Daniel D. Tompkins, Edward P. Livingston were among the graduates. To these we may add the beloved JOHN RANDOLPH, who did not graduate, but received here all the college education he ever had. He left up his junior year. Nor has the list since the opening of the nineteenth century been any the less distinguished. Among them we may name Dr. JOHN W. FRANCIS, Bishop ONDERDONK, JOHN SEIDELL, (of rebel Confederacy notoriety,) OGDEN HOFFMAN, the great lawyer; CHARLES ANTHON, the celebrated classical scholar; WILLIAM BEACH LAWRENCE, HENRY DRISLER, the successor of Dr. ANTHON in the College; Professor WALCOTT GIBBS, of Harvard University; General PHIL. KEARNEY, Rev. MORGAN DIX, and STEWART L. WOODFORD.

A NEW START.

When business had begun to encroach upon the vicinity of the College grounds in Park and College place, and their value had risen so much as to make it advisable, they were sold at a high price, and the College was moved to Forty-ninth-street, between Fourth and Fifth avenues, taking possession of the old Deaf and Dumb Asylum as its habitation. The original intention was that this should be only a temporary resting place, but twelve or thirteen years have passed and the College still remains in the metamorphosed building. Additional houses have been erected for the School of Mines and other purposes, and appearances now indicate that this will be the home of the institution for years to come.

The sale of the College property down town and the increased value of real estate up town of which it is the owner, have given Columbia a handsome fund for educational uses. But it is none too large—indeed, not large enough for the important things to which money might profitably be put. On going up town the sphere of the College was enlarged; new Professors were added, beside valuable and necessary scientific appliances.

ITS VARIOUS DEPARTMENTS.

Columbia College is divided into four separate departments:

1. The Academic Department—School of Letters and Science.
2. School of Mines.
3. School of Law.
4. School of Medicine.

Of these, all except the last are immediately connected with the College, but the last has, naturally, only a nominal and official connection. Together they form a very complete university, and considered as a whole they present an educational force not exceeded by that of either of the other two great universities of the East. The Schools of Mines and Law are of comparatively recent foundation—both having come into existence within the last ten years. Both have also sprung into immediate success. The School of Law is one of the very largest, if not the largest, in the United States, and in its general character stands unrivaled. The School of Mines was the first ever established in the country. It forthwith obtained prominence as a leading scientific school, and to-day stands at the head of the several mining schools of which it has been the exemplar. It ranks also very high among the mining schools of the world. In some of its departments, indeed in its general scope, it has no superior. Already it has turned out a large corps of young mining engineers, who are celebrating the thoroughness of its course and vindicating its necessity by the important services they are rendering to practical science. The School of Medicine, which has its seat in Twenty-third-street, and has also been known as the College of Physicians and Surgeons, is one of the oldest and most distinguished medical schools in the country.

The students under instruction are thus divided between the different schools:

School of Letters and Science	147
School of Mines	93
School of Law	204
School of Medicine	309
Total	753

The total number of professors and assistants in all the schools is 67. In this number are comprised many gentlemen of prominent national reputation in their several specialties. The President of the whole College or University is FREDERICK A. P. BARNARD, S. T. D., LL. D., a gentleman of prominence in the scientific world, and experienced as an educator. Omitting many names we might give, we select the following as some of the best known men in the different schools:

In Letters and Science, Professors Henry Drisler, Charles Davies, Charles A. Joy, John T. Van Amringe, William G. Peck, Chas. Murray Nairne, Ogden N. Rood, Charles Short, and others.

In the School of Mines, Professor John S. Newberry, John Torrey, Charles F. Chandler, Thomas Egleston, Jr., Francis L. Vinton, and others.

In the School of Law, Theodore W. Dwight, Francis Lieber, John Ordronaux, Marshal S. Bidwell, Charles P. Daly and others.

In the School of Medicine, Drs. Edward Delafield, Wm. Detmold, Willard Parker, Alonzo Clark, John C. Dalton, Samuel St. John, Thomas McLane Reed, G. C. Thomas, H. B. Sands, F. J. Bumstead and others.

CHARACTERISTICS OF THE COLLEGE.

The College proper had, until within the last decade, gained most of its reputation as a classical school. This reputation was given it by Dr. CHARLES ANTHON, its eminent classical Professor, who was not merely a scholar, but also a consummate teacher. The thoroughness of his training in the classics, and his dominant intellectual force gave tone to the whole institution. His system of instruction utilized all the collateral advantages to be obtained from classical study, and his own zeal therein was imparted to his pupils, so that to-day you find many private gentlemen of New-York, élèves of Columbia, whose classical studies are still pursued with intelligence and intelligence, and who have claims, if they cared to make them, to be recognized among the best Latin and Greek scholars in the country. The able successor of Dr. ANTHON, Dr. HENRY DRISLER, maintains the classical side of the College against the recent encroachments of the scientific side. But these latter yearly prove more powerful, and the prospect now is that the future reputation of Columbia will be principally sustained by its scientific course, in spite of the old classical and scholarly spirit still infused into the Institution by Dr. DRISLER, who is the senior Professor. This seems to be the irresistible tendency of the age.

FREE EDUCATION.

Liberal advantages are offered to those who are unable to pay the tuition fees of the College. The Society of the Alumni of the College is entitled to appoint four free students, and the Corporations of the City of New-York and of Brooklyn, the Mercantile Library, the American Institute, the Mechanics' Institute, the General Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen, of the City, are each entitled to two students, and the Corporation of Jersey City to one. Moreover the President of the College and its Treasurer have the power to remit the tuition fees to any student who they may think unable to pay them. This power, we are told, they exercise with the greatest liberality, their desire being that the advantages the College offers should reach as large a number of young men desirous of an education as possible. The poverty of a young man need therefore be no bar to his entering Columbia College. Moreover, we understand that the natural and honorable delicacy of the student is carefully regarded in all such cases. It is not known by the class which are the free and which are the paying students.

MAGAZINES.

—Putnam's opens with a vigorous battle sketch of "That night at Fort Wagner." Following this comes a straightforward and earnest account of some months' experience as a reforming drunkard under the care of Dr. DAY, at the Binghamton Inebriate Asylum. It is a rarely valuable article, and may give a hint of new life to men who have almost despaired of themselves. "VICTOR HUGO and the Constables," is a translation from a narrative sent to the editor by CHARLES, the eldest son of the great Liberalist, giving an account of how the English drove the French exiles from Jersey on demand of LOUIS NAPOLEON. These three gain additional interest from being personal narratives. "Our Established Church" gives many facts and figures with reference to the Roman Catholics in America, calculated to make opponents of organized concentrated power in a republic to open their eyes. Various other articles add pleasurable elements to this number, notably one nature-loving chat on "Shy Friends" of the woods and fields, and, among the tales, a lively war-sketch called "Scarlet Stockings"—although the war furnishes but the effective background, and does not enter into the action of the picture. The monthly notes, on literature, art, current events and topics of the day, always contain something for everybody.

—The Atlantic gracefully lightens up a little out of regard for the July weather which is rapidly coming upon its many readers. "The Drummer Ghost" is a good story, with which the attention is first solicited. "Birch Browsings" is the name of a nature-loving account of what must have been a delightful trout-fishing excursion in New-York State. There is here also an interesting eulogy and biographical sketch of THOMAS CRAWFORD, the sculptor; a tale is commenced, with somewhat too long a preface, but promising excellently, called "Gabrielle de Bergerac;" "Three Years as a Negro Minstrel," "Marrying a Pickpocket," "The Greek Goddesses," are titles telling their own tales. "Our Inebriates, Harbored and Helped," is the second article in the monthlies upon this subject of growing importance. "French and English Art Writers" is instructive, and, in these days of growing art literature, well timed. One or two serials and two poems, "The Restored Picture" and "A Statue," give us the whole list; a good one.

—The Galaxy maintains itself handsomely for the next month. Besides the serials of CHARLES READE, JOHN S. C. ABBOTT and Mrs. EDWARD'S ("Susan Fielding,") it gives a thoughtful article on "Our Impending Chinese Problem" by RAPHAEL POMPELLY, a scientific observer, who has spent years in Japan, China and on our Pacific Coast; "The Practical View of Spider's Silk," by BURT G. WILDER, M. D.; "The Last Chapter in the History of the War" (all the magazines seem war-bitten this time;) "The End of Word Controversy," by RICHARD GRANT WHITE; and sundry other good things, which we will not here enumerate—among them being several pretty poems.

—Harpers' "New" Monthly Magazine issues this month its two hundred and thirtieth number. How much longer is this veteran of thirty-nine volumes to be called "new?" However, it generally comes along fresh, and certainly "as good as new." The July number has illustrated articles on "Early Aeronautics;" "Border Reminiscences," a right spicy sketch by RANDOLPH E. MARCY, U. S. A.; "Making Watches by Machinery," at Elgin, Mass., and the various "Birds of Paradise." A comprehensive and well-put article shows "Grant on the Battlefield" from Missouri to Richmond. "Notes for Travelers in Europe" is full of good hints. There is the usual quota of lively and readable stories. Miss MULOCH'S "Brave Lady," and JUSTIN MCCARTHY'S tale of "My Enemy's Daughter" being continued. The editor's "Easy Chair," "Book Table," "Monthly Record" and comical "Drawer" are, as always, excellent, and filled with genial chat, good common sense, graceful criticism, an accurate presentation of facts, and lots of fun.

—The Catholic World gives to its peculiar constituency an attractive magazine for July. It opens with a criticism of the painting of "Columbus before the Council of Salamanca," the especial design of the article being to defend the monks and churchmen of that day from the charge of unfriendliness to science and advancement. "Sauntering" is a pleasant ramble through some churches of Paris. "The Physical Basis of Life" is a very clear consideration and criticism of Professor HUXLEY'S noted lecture. The reviewer puts his finger on the weak spot of the physicist's argument in showing how it fails, like all other arguments which ignore a creative cause, in connecting the inorganic with the organic, and explaining how his comes into the problem. A continued paper on the Spanish revolution; "The Second Slavery Council of Baltimore;" a review of "Lecky on Morals;" an article on "Religion emblemed in Flowers;" No. 7 of the "Catholicity and Pantheism" series; and several pleasant translations, tales, legends, poems, &c., complete the number. It is well up to the average high standard of this excellent magazine.

—Lippincott's offers, first, the opening chapters of "The Vicar of Bullhampton," a new novel by ANTHONY TROLLOPE. The several continued tales are still in progress, several new and complete ones, and some brief essays on matters of interest to every one. "The Philosophy of Absurdity" is good; "Fancy Signatures," capital; "The Art of Getting to Sleep" is worth a vast amount to many thousands of people, if its advice is sound, and we are inclined to think it is, from the general air of vraisemblance that pervades the whole article. The names of writers in this number would promise good things, at all events: EDWARD EVERETT, ROBERT DALE OWEN, LUCY H. HOOPER, Mrs. WISTER, (German,) CARL BENSON, and so on.

—Onward is following its name, and really improves every month. The spirited sketch of that oft-painted picture of "little PHIL'S ride from Winchester, and his changing a routed army to a conquering one, is thoroughly good—one of the very best war-stories we have read. It smells of the camp and the field, and is evidently from the pen of "one who was there." The other tales and brief, wide-awake articles are full of life and interest. The croquet talk continues, with clearly-drawn diagrams, and, on the whole, Onward is a good magazine.

—The New Eclectic, of Baltimore, with pleasantly-tinted cover and fair open page, gives admirable selections from English and American periodical literature, blending, with good judgment and good taste, the realms of fiction, history, science, literature and social discussion into one of the most satisfactory and readable compendiums of the kind that is published.

—The Mother at Home does not seem so well aimed this week as usual; there are too many articles of no special point, except the exhibition of sentiment, which is very good as a means—very poor as an end. There are always many excellent suggestions in this little periodical, however, and if its success equals its adaptedness to be useful in the family it should be enlarged so that its writers may have a better chance to work out their ideas. It seems almost entirely precluded from fiction—an element of instruction not to be omitted without overpowering reasons.

Robbery of a Stage in Nevada.

From the White Pine News, June 15.

At about 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning, one of WELLS, FARGO & Co.'s stages was robbed, on Pancake Mountain, seventeen miles north of Hamilton. The sandy plateau on the summit of the mountain had just been reached, and the team hauled up to a slow pace, when three men, masked, stepped out, and ordered Messrs. GEO. CARLTON, the driver, noticing several shot-guns and Henry rifles in close proximity to his head, immediately complied with the imperative demand, whereupon the treasure-box was called for. It was passed out, and, according to way-bills, contained, in coin, packages of bullion, &c., $21,000. One of the robbers, with gun in hand, remained at the head of the team, while the other two retired to a convenient clump of bushes, and proceed to open and rifle the box.

Coroners' Cases.

An inquest was held yesterday, at the New-York Hospital, by Coroner KEENAN, over the remains of AMLEE PARTRIDGE, who died from the effects of injuries sustained on Monday by a fall through the hatchway of the premises of the New-York Insurance Company, corner of Leonard-street and Broadway. He was at work on the third floor, and when he slipped through the hatchway fell into the sub-cellar, a distance of sixty feet. As the occurrence was purely accidental, the jury so rendered their verdict. Deceased was a native of this State, aged 23 and unmarried.

Coroner KEENAN will hold an inquest to-day at the Morgue over the remains of JASON CARSON, a boy aged 14, who had both legs severed from his body by a collision between a locomotive of a Harlem Railroad train and a Belt Line car, at the junction of Fourth-avenue and Fifty-ninth-street, on Monday afternoon. The deceased was carried to Bellevue Hospital in an ambulance, where death ensued during the night. The conductor and driver of the horse-car are now under arrest, to await the action of the Coroner. It is said that the locomotive engineer is not to blame in the premises.

Coroner FLYNN proceeded yesterday to the late residence of FRANK BUNKER, at No. 65 West Houston-street, for the purpose of impaneling a jury to view the remains of the murdered man. As the Police desired more time for their search after the accused murderer, JOHN HASTINGS, the Coroner consented to postpone action in the case until Monday next, when the examination of witnesses will proceed. After the post-mortem examination of the body had been concluded by Deputy Coroner SHINE, the Coroner dismissed his jury and granted the necessary certificate of death, preparatory to a permit for burial. JAMES PETERS, the bar-keeper for deceased, and EDWARD HAGGERTY, of No. 183 Wooster-street, were required to find bail for their appearance on Monday as witnesses for the people. Captain MILLS, of the Eighth Ward, is making strenuous efforts to secure the arrest of the man JOHN HASTINGS, who was accused by the deceased as being his assailant.

Coroner KEENAN was called yesterday to No. 81 Essex-street, for the purpose of holding an inquest over the remains of Mrs. FREDK J. HART, who had committed suicide. It appears that the deceased had been partially deranged for several months, and attempted suicide in March last by cutting her throat, though she was prevented from effecting her purpose by her husband. A watch had been maintained on the movements of the deceased ever since, but she succeeded in evading it on Saturday, when she procured a quantity of Paris green and swallowed it. When Mr. HART returned home, he found her very ill, and on his summoning a physician, she confessed to the poison. Despite the efforts of the physician, the poison completed its work, and death ensued on Monday night. The jury rendered a verdict in accordance with these facts. Deceased was a native of New-Jersey, and 29 years of age.

Mount Washington Collegiate Institute.

The Mount Washington Collegiate Institute, a school for youths, on the corner of Fourth and Macdougal streets, held its twenty-sixth annual Commencement exercises yesterday at Wallack's Theatre. Mr. GEORGE W. CLARKE, the Principal, was in the chair, and accompanying him on the platform were Chancellor FERRIS, of the New-York University; Rev. Dr. PARMLY, Rev. Dr. WM. ISAACS LOOMIS and Rev. Dr. DEEMS.

The elocutionary exercises were under charge of Mr. D. F. DIMON, and Dodworth's Band played between the different recitations. A salutatory in English was given by JAY HUMPHREY, welcoming the visitors and the Faculty, after which the usual discourses were delivered by the graduating class. CHARLES W. WOOLSEY spoke the valedictory, thanking the Professors for their efforts, and bidding them adieu.

After the addresses a distribution of prizes took place. They were awarded in the Senior Department to E. M. DEEMS, O. A. COLTON and WM. F. HARDENBERGH for deportment; H. E. THE PROGRESSIVE JEWS.

The Call for a Rabbinical Conference—Platform of Principles—The Radical Party.

While many Christian denominations through their conventions and assemblies, have of late inaugurated reforms in their Church systems, creeds and modes of worship, the Jews of the United States seem also to be moving in a similar direction. One branch of this body—the Reform Party—stands upon far more liberal principles than the orthodox Jews, but among themselves they are not yet harmonious.

To promote a more distinctive union is now one of the earnest objects of the leaders in the progressive party. With this view, some time since, the following call was made by two prominent Rabbis of this City:

CALL FOR A RABBINICAL CONFERENCE.—Jewish religious life has, in the past years, under the blessings of liberty very auspiciously advanced. Reformed Judaism has become a power, from which even the so-called Orthodox Congregations cannot withdraw themselves any longer, and all that is required to more firmly establish the maintenance of this power and to spread it in more extended spheres, is the concurrence of like-thinking Rabbis on the principles, not the form, of modern worship, and the solution of various practical religious, especially marital questions, which concern life so deeply, and which, in a great measure, are decided in most positive contradiction against the principles of Reform, and according to the Schulchan Aruch.

The undersigned beg, therefore, to invite their theologically educated colleagues, who favor decided religious progress, to a Rabbinical Conference, to be held some time after the coming holidays, with the relative to communicate their second time as soon as practicable, to one of the undersigned, and in the affirmative case, to designate their wishes as to the time and place of the Conference.

Dr. S. ADLER,
Rabbi of the Emanu-el Temple Congregation, No. 226 East Thirty-third-street.

Dr. D. EINHORN,
Rabbi of the Congregation Temple Adath Jeshurun, No. 202 West Fortieth-street.
NEW-YORK, June 1, 1869.

This call has already been responded to by several Rabbis throughout the country approving of its objects, and the prospect is that there will be a large representation at the Conference, which will be held in the Fall at some central point.

The particular purpose of this movement is to unite all Progressive Jews on one platform of principles. As this branch now exists, it is itself divided into two parties—the Reformers and the Radicals. The latter desire the union to be made upon their views and doctrines. They claim that it requires but a distinct declaration of such doctrines to bring all others within their ranks.

The faith of the Radical Jews, as compared with that of the Orthodox, is greatly in advance of it viewed from the stand-point of Gentiles. It denies and repudiates some of the most cherished dogmas of ancient Judaism. In the first place the Radical Progressionists no longer believe in a personal Messiah—a royal King, who shall reign in power hereafter over a new Pauline. Nor do they look forward to that land, or any other, as the place for the restitution of the Jews. They have no visions of the new Jerusalem or the new temple.

Furthermore, the Radicals renounce the obligation of the old dietary laws not only in practice but in theory also.

In regard to the marital relation, referred to in the call, they look upon it as a subject to be controlled by civil laws, and hence accept all divorces as final that the Courts may decree.

These are the chief features to which the Radicals base their faith, and they hope to unite all the reform party upon them. As to modes of worship, they consider that a matter of individual Church preference.

It appears by late advices that a movement similar to this has just been proposed in Germany. An eminent Rabbi there has recently issued a circular in which he announces a platform or creed very similar to that of the Radical Jews in this country.

Copartnership Difficulty—Playing with Edged Tools.

Among the not unfrequent commercial snarls which from time to time are brought into the Courts to be unraveled, some are peculiarly illustrative of the sharp and bitter struggles which mark the efforts of men to procure the lion's share of business. A raw cotton speculation which is now being carded out in the Supreme Court of this City, while illustrating the results of many similar speculations, is at the same time worthy of note on account of the freedom with which both parties have availed themselves of the "edged tools" of the law. The following are the facts as set forth by the papers in the case:

On Jan. 1, 1869, a partnership was agreed upon in this City between LOUIS CAHN on the one part and ISAAC F. HUNT, J. HAMILTON HUNT and ARTHUR THOMPSON on the other part. The former was to furnish $10,000 cash, and the latter $3,000, their skill, influence and labor to be used in the business of commission merchants to speculate in Southern cotton. Though these articles of copartnership were never formally executed, yet the parties engaged in business under them, and the $10,000 or more was from time to time furnished by CAHN. One or both of the HUNTS were residents of Charleston, S. C.; the others resided in this City. Some time between January and June the partner CAHN discovered what he believed to be satisfactory evidence that, in direct violation of the articles of copartnership, the HUNTS were using the firm money to purchase cotton on their private account, shipping it in the name of "Heiskell Hernandez," who CAHN alleges to be none other than the wives of the respective partners HUNT. They also drew on account of cotton which was never shipped, thus reducing the capital and compelling the real shipments to be pledged in this City. Alarmed at these proceedings, CAHN took counsel in relation to his affairs, and was advised to bide his time until sufficient of the partnership property came within his control to indemnify him for the amount he had advanced to the firm, and then "freeze on to it." Furthermore, he learned that his partners were about forming a new partnership with another party, to his exclusion; and he thereupon seized on the copartnership property to the amount of about $6,000, announcing his intention to hold it pending an investigation and settlement of the partnership accounts. At this stage of affairs the other three defendants commenced an action in the Supreme Court alleging a dissolution of the copartnership by mutual consent, and that the partner CAHN had fraudulently converted the partnership property to his own use, refusing to account; and they asked for a receiver and an injunction. CAHN answered, denying the dissolution of the copartnership, and alleging facts substantially as before stated, with a willingness to account.

The next strategic movement of the plaintiffs was to swear to an affidavit alleging in addition to the fraudulent conversion by defendant, his preparing to depart the State with intent to defraud the plaintiffs. This affidavit was sworn to by ISAAC F. HUNT, corroborated by THOMPSON, and upon it an order of arrest was obtained against defendant, under which he was held to bail in the sum of $6,000.

Now it became the defendant's turn to move, and, in company with his counsel, he proceeded before Justice MANSFIELD, at Essex Market Police Court, and charged the defendants, HUNT and THOMPSON, with perjury, in making the affidavit on which the order of arrest was granted. On this complaint a criminal warrant was issued, and yesterday the defendant, ISAAC F. HUNT, was arraigned before Justice MANSFIELD, and a day fixed for the examination, the prisoner in the meantime being allowed to go on his own recognizance. So goes the legal battle for the present.

The Genuine Enoch Arden—How Dual Husbands do in Real Life.

A case came before Justice LEDWITH at the Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday morning, that proved from the statements made by the several parties to the Magistrate, to be of unusual interest, and the substance of these statements is embodied in the following narrative:

Years ago JOSEPH CASTRO, then in the first flush of dawning manhood, married a beautiful young girl with whom he lived happily, and the youthful pair reached the acme of nuptial bliss when their union was blessed with a daughter. Shortly after this event the initial gun of the great war sounded over the land from Charleston harbor, and the husband, resigning the delights of home, marched forth in defence of his imperilled country. The wife bore bravely up under the infliction of his absence, and for a time was cheered by his frequent letters. Gradually these reached her at longer intervals, and at last ceased altogether. Then she heard he had gone down to death in one of the great battles, and assuming the state of widowhood sought for the means to support herself and child. Her struggle was a hard one, and finally she became a waitress in a saloon where she met one CHARLES BOKERT and after some acquaintance married him.

Her new wifehood spedded smoothly enough until a few days ago husband No. 1 appeared, and without any regard to the claims or feelings of No. 2, claimed her for his own. It appears that her heart returned to its first elect, and, abandoning No. 2, she openly and fondly adhered to the earlier mate. No. 1 evidently did not join in the general happiness, and although it is not yet clear how the culmination was reached, he was arrested on complaint of CASTRO and was arraigned yesterday on a charge of outraging the little daughter of his wife by her first husband. He denied his guilt in language more expressive than elegant, and declared his opinion that the whole thing was a "put up job" on the part of his wife and CASTRO to get rid of him. The Magistrate desiring time to reflect upon the case, remanded the accused to the Station-house.

SOUTH SIDE RAILROAD TROUBLE.

Arrest of McMannus—The Railroad Company in a Heap of Trouble.

VANDEWATER SMITH, of Hempstead, one of the leading members of the Rockaway branch of the South Side Railroad, appeared before Justice SNEDEKER, of Jamaica, on Monday morning, and made complaint against WILLIAM B. MCMANNUS, charging him with having willfully and maliciously torn up, broken and destroyed the rails and cross-ties of the Company. Officer KERN arrested MCMANNUS, and he was that evening arraigned before the Justice, but owing to the absence of the plaintiff's counsel, the case was adjourned until Friday. Mr. DONEHUE, of this City, appeared as counsel for the defendant, and after addressing the Court in behalf of his client, stated that he desired the Railroad Company to remove the rails and ties from the premises of MCMANNUS. If they did not the property would be sold. This the Railroad Company came to under a contempt of Court, owing to MCMANNUS' having obtained a second injunction against them. The cause of the trouble is owing to a difference as to the value of the land through which they desire to lay their track. MCMANNUS demands $2,500, and the Railroad Company offer him $600, leaving a difference of $2,000. Some very important points of law are involved, and the crime with which MCMANNUS is charged is a State Prison offence.

More Complaints against Ticket Swindlers.

Three complaints were made yesterday before Marshal [TOOKER against the persons keeping the ticket office in Liberty, near West-street, for swindling. The first complainant was FREDERICK SCHULTZ, of Utah, who bought a ticket for Europe and got $600 in greenbacks exchanged for Prussian silver. On counting the silver he found that he had been swindled out of $200. The money was recovered.

VALENTINE FISHER, of Chicago, bought a ticket at the same office and most confidingly left with the proprietors 13 gold Napoleons for safe keeping. On receiving back his deposit FISHER found that it was 20 francs short. The amount was recovered.

CONRAD STRUBEL, of Lancaster, Penn., after purchasing a ticket at the same office, left $290 in greenbacks with the proprietors for safe keeping. On going to the office to reclaim it he was offered in exchange 41 half sovereigns and $3 in greenbacks, which he took, and then laid his case before the Marshal, who recovered the amount due to him.

OTHER COMPLAINTS.

MARIA HEMSICKER, a Swiss blonde, 18 years of age, who has lately been residing in New-Haven, came on to this City on Monday, and, in answer to an advertisement, applied to Mrs. FISHER, of No. 32 William-street, and obtained a situation as servant in Mrs. FISHER'S establishment. MARIA soon found, however, that the services required of her were of a different character to what she had supposed, and she therefore left the place and laid her complaints before the Marshal. She was referred to Superintendent KENNEDY.

Another complaint was entered against lawyer REAVY, for receiving $58 for professional services which he had failed to perform. The complainant is RICHARD M. BENT. Mr. REAVY'S case is to be laid before the Judges of the Courts in which he practices.

Meeting of the Police Commissioners—Important Resolutions.

At a meeting of the Police Commissioners, Judge BOSWORTH presiding, held yesterday morning, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That the Superintendent is requested to report what number of patrolmen should in his opinion be assigned to each precinct, and to each special branch of service in the City of New-York, on the basis of 2,000 men for the whole City, and to make the like report in respect to Brooklyn, on the basis of there being 368 men for that city.

Resolved, That each Police Surgeon is hereby instructed to report to the Board the cases which he has personally attended at any station during the last twelve months, giving the date of each attendance, the name of the person so attended and the facts of each case in brief.

It is believed that the last of these resolutions will have the effect of bringing to light the exact amount of work performed by the Police Surgeons in such compendious form that it can be easily scrutinized not only by the Police Board, but by the general public.

The Park Savings Bank Robbery Case.

The examination in the case of EDWARD HAMITSCH, the German clerk who was arrested last Saturday, on the charge of attempting to sell some of the bonds stolen from the Park Savings Bank, in Brooklyn, on the 27th of February last, took place before Judge WALSH yesterday. The witnesses were Mr. OLMSTEAD, President of the Bank; Mr. GILL, in whose office the accused tried to dispose of the bonds, and Mr. CHARLES NIEMAN, of New-York, who testified to finding the prisoner with $20,000 worth of bonds in his possession one night last week, which he said belonged to his employer, Mr. LE BARRON, broker at No. 25 Pine-street.

Mr. GEORGE A. LATOURET, who had spent the night with the prisoner, testified to a confession of some of the facts in the case by the accused, made to him on Monday night. Among the statements thus made was one that Mr. LE BARRON, since arrested, had told prisoner that Judge MORRIS, of the District Attorney, was a common scoundrel, and that Judge MOORE, being another, he, LE BARRON, was going to retain him, MOORE, so that the case could be "fixed up."

While Judge MOORE was endeavoring to test the veracity of the witness, Judge MORRIS said that the young man, LATOURET, was under his protection as witness, and he could assure the counsel, MOORE, that what he, the witness, stated was incontrovertible.

The further examination of the case was adjourned until to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Extensive Confidence Operations—Arrest of a Suspected Person.

For some time past the merchants of this City have been defrauded by the operations of some most adroit confidence operations by means of bogus checks, and complaint being made at Police Headquarters, Detective BENNETT was assigned to the case by Chief KELSO. After some days of constant labor Detective BENNETT, yesterday, arrested one JOSEPH W. HADLEY alias Ward, as one of the guilty parties. It is alleged that the prisoner purchased a suit of clothes of BROKAW BROS., No. 34 Fourth-avenue, and tendered in payment a check for $215 on the Shoe and Leather Bank, drawn by FRANK BIRD; and, as it was supposed to be genuine, it was accepted and the change given him. After his departure with the spoils the check was found to be worthless, as the bank knew not BIRD nor his checks. The same game was attempted to be played on CALVIN WHITTY, the check in this case being for $130, and the property purchased being a velocipede, which, however, was not obtained. Alderman FLYNN is also stated to be one of HADLEY'S victims; but as he has not appeared against the accused, the particulars of his case are not known. It is believed that HADLEY has a confederate equally guilty with himself; but the detectives have not yet succeeded in finding him. The accused will be arraigned this morning at the Tombs Police Court, when it is expected that many additional complainants will appear against him.

Farmers' Club—Peat as a Manure.

At a meeting of this body, yesterday, at Cooper Institute, (Alderman ELY in the chair,) the subject of peat and its value as a manure was very fully discussed. The general impression seemed to be that peat to be of value should be mixed with barn-yard manure, in which case the value of the compost was declared to be quite equal to that of the same amount of unmixed barn-yard manure. The Chairman held that peat should never be used until it had been exposed for at least twelve months to the action of the atmosphere, especially to the influence of frost and snow.

The question of bringing cattle, or, loan to first-class Brokers and Bankers rules about 10 ₱ cent. per annum, or 7 ₱ cent. Gold interest. In carrying over the Railways and other speculative collateral Money, in front of the Exchange, between 2 and 3 o'clock P. M. has come to be "a fancy Stock." The rates varied to-day from ½ to ¾ ₱ cent., and even ½ ₱ cent. was spoken of after the close of Bank hours, at 3 o'clock. Some of our neighbors by multiplying these rates by 365 days figure up enormous rates for money per annum. But this cannot be called a fair criterion. The extra rates paid for a few days are nothing more than commissions to carry over the Railway Stocks, many of which, singular to say, advance in price 1@2 ₱ cent. while paying ½ to ¾ ₱ cent. per day. The practice recently introduced of buying and selling Money for a day in front of the Exchange is not a commendable one. In one sense it is a vicious and demoralizing plan to depress or advance the price of Money for effect on the Stock Market, and it already begins to be so understood and appreciated that Stocks are constantly bought on dear and sold on cheap Money by the rule of contraries, and most frequently with profit to the operators in either case. But the mischief as well as inconvenience of the practice extends to the Wall-street Bank movement, which is more or less disturbed by the violent ups and downs and uncertainties of Brokers' balances. Thus, for example, we hear of certain Banks standing heavy creditors at the Clearing House at 10 A. M. from yesterday's operations, (unexpectedly so, perhaps,) and then being called upon before 2 P. M. to pay as heavy checks at their counters in Greenbacks without warning, and it may be after they had lent out or promised to lend their apparent forenoon balances. This sort of finesse is, of course, part of the little game of the Brokers who appear on the sidewalk, in front of the Exchange, to make the Money Market of the day. It amounts practically to even more than the "lock-up" of Greenbacks, as resorted to in previous trials of the market. Their Bank balances are not literally locked up, but are held in so great uncertainty as to be of no use to the Banks themselves and less than useless to the Street until let out at extra rates by the party who have engineered "the squeeze." In place of extra high rates, they occasionally elect to make exceptionally cheap terms, as on one or two days last week; so it has ceased to be a surprise after bank hours to hear that Money is offered at 5 ₱ cent. per annum, or held for ½ ₱ cent. a day. Late this afternoon the dearest figure was the fashion of the sidewalk.

The sales of Gold varied but slightly today, 137¼@137⅜@137¼@137⅜ ₱ cent. The Treasury is now rapidly taking receipts for the July Registered Interest, and issuing Gold Checks payable on Thursday morning, July 1, and similar Checks are issued for Coupons, (over 30 in number,) July scheduled and verified. The Hamburg steamer carried out $684,000, but in good part in Mexican Silver and other Foreign Coin.

On the Stock Exchange the Public Funds were less active than on Monday, and the 5-20s and 10-40s generally ⅛ ₱ cent. cheaper. The State Bonds of the Southern States were comparatively steady. The Railways opened steady at about the last prices of Monday, but the movement dragged somewhat until after 1 o'clock, when there was a tendency to improvement, and soon after to apparent strength, New-York Central leading the list. At a later hour the turn was in the opposite direction, and the market closed feverish at 5:30 P. M., as follows, compared with Monday night:

It is proper to add that several of the leading Bankers ask 109¾ less a brokerage, or 109⅝ ₱ cent. net, where preference is given to their particular signatures or London credits are to be settled in their own offices. The rates for Short Sight are 110¼@110⅜ ₱ cent.; Cable transfers, 110½ ₱ cent.

The Treasury Office will enter upon the new Fiscal Year on Thursday morning, with General DANIEL BUTTERFIELD as Assistant Treasurer at New-York. The first purchase of United States 5-20s, $1,000,000 for the Sinking Fund, will be made at noon on that day. The first sale of Gold, $1,000,000, will be made at noon on the following Thursday, July 8.

Messrs. SOUTTER & Co., No. 53 William-street, will pay the July Interest on the 8 ₱ cent. Bonds of the Wilmington, Charlotte and Rutherford Railroad Bonds.

A Railway friend, who has closely examined the recent lease of the Fort Wayne Road, writes as follows:

The Board of Directors of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway Company, under the resolution of the stockholders and bondholders adopted at their meeting on the 24th, have decided to issue a seven ₱ cent. guaranteed stock, the dividend on which will be payable quarterly in the first day of January, April, July and October on each year. These dividends will be free of the United States Income tax, and especial precautions have been made in the lease that they shall ever hereafter be free from deductions for any tax which may be levied by the Federal Government or either of the States in which the railway is situated, and which may be collected through the corporation owning the road, or the corporation leasing it, or by virtue of jurisdiction over the property or any part thereof. The great value of these provisions is apparent. As the tax laws new stand, the dividends will be free of all taxes to accrue. These taxes are to be paid by the lessee; and the possible changes of the future in the tax system of our Federal and State Governments are carefully provided for. It is under stood that certificates are being prepared, and that when ready for exchange due notice will be given.

The week's exports of domestic produce hence have been to the currency value of $3,634,-936.

The Metropolitan Savings Bank has declared the usual semi-annual dividend, payable on and after July 21.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

The London Star of yesterday commented upon the reported sailing of Colonel RYAN's expedition for Cuba from this port. It declares that the departure of this party is an infraction of neutrality just as flagrant as the escape of the Alabama from England.

A formal complaint of ill-treatment and arrest by the French authorities during the recent election riots, and a demand for compensation, has been made by Mr. J. Q. WARREN, an American citizen, to Minister WASHBURNE.

CUBA.

The new Captain-General, DE RODAS, at a banquet in Havana, on Monday, said that he came to Cuba counting upon the aid of fifty thousand volunteers in suppressing the rebellion. It is reported that complete harmony exists between the late riotous volunteers and their Captain-General. A report is in circulation that the Cubans have executed the entire company of Spanish soldiers captured at Sabana Mere. The Cuban expedition, which was reported to have sailed from this City on Saturday evening, was heard from yesterday at Gardiner's Island Bay, on Long Island. The fillibusters assembled there on Sunday in tugboats, and were transferred to a large steamer which was to convey them to Cuba. They numbered about 700, forming parts of three regiments, which were commanded by Colonel RYAN, Colonel BYRON and General SPEAR. They were joined by two schooners, which carried arms and ammunition.

GENERAL.

Late intelligence from South America is received by the arrival of the French mail steamer from Rio at Lisbon. A revolution had broken out in Montevideo, owing to the disorganized state of the finances. The allies had begun their march into the interior, had already captured many prisoners, and taken the town of Yviluy by surprise. The Paraguayans had abandoned Patinho Cué.

Advices from St. Domingo to the 8th inst. give the particulars of the unsuccessful bombardment of Puerto Platte by the Telegrafo, under General LUPERON, who is acting in concert with Ex-President CABRAL for the overthrow of the Baez Government. The bombardment was kept up for six days, but no material damage was done, owing to the distance at which the Telegrafo stationed herself. Our dispatches by telegraph state that LUPERON and his crew have been declared pirates, and will be punished as such if captured. LUPERON has issued a proclamation of rebellion.

Dispatches from Admiral ROWAN, of the Asiatic Squadron, dated Yokohama, May 13, have just been received at Washington. He reports that the flagship Piscataqua is at Shanghae, the Oneida and the Madilla at Hong Kong, the Monocacy at Shanghae, the Iroquois and the Ashuelot on their way to Nagasaki, the Maumee and the Idaho at Nagasaki, and the Aroostook at Hiogo. Ex-Minister J. ROSS BROWNE was landed at Shanghae April 27, by the Monocacy, for Hong Kong.

Severe shocks of earthquake have again been felt in parts of Washington Territory, and much alarm among the people has been created thereby. This time the heaviest shocks were in Seattle and Olympia.

A well-dressed man entered the jewelry store of JOSIAH GOODING, in Washington-street, Boston, yesterday, and while examining some jewelry, suddenly threw red pepper in the eyes of the clerk, Mr. GOODING's son, who was alone in the store, and ran off with about two thousand dollars' worth of diamond rings.

A dispatch from Green River City, Wyoming Territory, reports, on the authority of the survivor, the loss of all but one of the celebrated Powell exploring party in the famous canyon of the Colorado. As the name of the survivor is not given, the story is not fully credited.

The work of constructing the telegraph line from Boston to Duxbury, Mass., to connect with the new French cable, was begun yesterday.

The steamers City of Newport and Bay Queen ran into each other, on Monday afternoon, in the Narragansett Bay, during a dense fog, and both were disabled. No lives were lost.

Rich silver mines have been discovered between White Pines and the head of navigation on the Colorado River, not far from the line of survey of the Southern Pacific Railroad.

Captain JAMES ROBERTS, United States Deputy Marshal, in attempting to enforce the revenue laws upon one JACK RUNOLD, a distiller in Knox County, Ky., was persistently resisted by RUNOLD and his confederates, who resorted to arms. ROBERTS defended himself, and inflicted probably fatal wounds upon RUNOLD.

A Denver dispatch says that 200,000 crossties, for the Denver Pacific Railroad, have been floated down the Cache Le Poudre River, and that 100,000 more are coming down. The contract for ties for the first sixty-five miles of the road will be completed by Monday.

Fifty feet of the tow-path bank in the Genesee Valley Canal, at the slide near Portage, were washed out yesterday. It will take a week to make repairs.

The case of Mrs. E. A. POLLARD, for assaulting, with intent to kill, Dr. MOORE, of Baltimore, some eighteen months ago, was brought to trial in the Criminal Court at Baltimore yesterday. Mrs. POLLARD made her own statement before the Court, and detailed her many wrongs, showing the causes which impelled her to shoot Dr. MOORE. The Court gave her a sentence of only thirty days' imprisonment, which it is thought will be modified to a fine with the costs. Mrs. POLLARD created quite a scene in Court by swooning away.

At the meeting of the stockholders of the Philadelphia Library, held in Philadelphia, yesterday, to take action on the bequest of Dr. RUSH, after a heated discussion, the matter was referred to a Special Committee who are to report at the meeting in early October.

A servant girl named MARY HENRY is on trial before the Oyer and Terminer at Whitehall, on the charge of having attempted to poison the family of a Mr. STEVENS, in Greenwich, last Summer, by putting rat poison, which contained arsenic, in their tea.

A terrible accident occurred in the iron works of B. B. THOMAS & Co., at Lancaster, Penn., yesterday. While some workmen were engaged in removing the lining from a furnace a portion of the structure fell, carrying with it the scaffolding upon which the men were standing. One, a German, named JOHN SCHLEBITH, was instantly killed, and two others were injured in such a manner as to render their recovery very doubtful. It is rumored that SCHLEBITH fell into the furnace and was instantly burned up.

The statement of semi-annual dividends payable in Boston on the 1st of July is published. The total amount payable is $12,543,517, which is a falling off from the earnings of the two previous six months. A murder occurred near Sulphur Well, six miles from Louisville, on Friday. The parties to the affray were JOHN ARNOLD and JAS. LOWELL. After an angry dispute, LOWELL pulled out his pistol and fired twice, a ball entering ARNOLD's breast, and producing a fatal result. LOWELL has fled to parts unknown.

Rights of Americans Abroad.

We had an account yesterday from Cuba of the execution of two American fillibusters, and we had also an account from France of the unjustifiable treatment of a number of Americans during the recent troubles in Paris. We learn this morning that one of the Americans arrested in Paris (Mr. WARREN) has entered a formal complaint to our Minister, with a demand for compensation; and we learned yesterday from our correspondent, how, beside the extremely cruel treatment to which he was subjected, Mr. WARREN had been deprived of 380 francs by the Government Police who arrested him.

As regards the two American citizens executed in Cuba, we suppose our Government can do nothing. We consider that the Spanish authorities took a very foolish course in their case; but as to their right, under international law, to proceed to the extremest point, there is no question. We mean, of course, on the supposition that they really were fillibusters, and actually engaged in levying war against the Spanish power. On this point our Government must take means to satisfy itself. We know how ready, in cases previously reported, the Spanish authorities in Cuba have been to indulge in suspicions against American residents; and it is imperatively necessary that the facts in this case be ascertained. We must show the utmost determination to maintain the rights of our citizens abroad, and especially in countries where there are revolutionary troubles, and where Americans are sure to be suspected with sympathizing with the Liberal side.

The French Government cannot refuse to render justice to Mr. WARREN. It was when passing along the Boulevard Montmartre in company with another American, that he saw the Government Police pursuing a crowd, and he instantly turned into a side street to keep out of the melée. He was, however, followed, seized, knocked down, arrested, put in jail and shockingly maltreated for two days, and it was only through good fortune that he managed to communicate with another American citizen, who went to our Minister, and finally, after much trouble and delay, procured his release.

There is no doubt that when foreigners, whether of American or any other nationality, are in a revolutionary city like Paris, they must run certain risks; but it is not endurable that our citizens should be subjected to treatment like this, under such circumstances as these. We consider that our Government is bound, through its Minister at Paris, to take steps to secure justice in this case. It is not merely the return of the money which was seized from his person that should be required, but a handsome indemnity for his outrageous maltreatment. We hope that Minister WASHBURNE will at once take up the matter, and we trust that President GRANT will himself give it attention. There is a large American "colony" resident in Paris; and so long as they do not violate the laws or conspire against the Government, they must be protected.

Economy the Watchword—The New Fiscal Year.

There are some very comforting indications that the work of economy in the administration of affairs, to which the Government voluntarily committed itself, has not been entirely forgotten. We are now on the eve of the new fiscal year, which, for most of the Governmental Departments, begins to-morrow. The appropriations made by Congress last Winter were, as is well known, chiefly for the twelvemonth which is about to open on the 1st of July, and, accordingly, the "reduction, retrenchment and reform" effected in many of the Departments, have been mainly with the view of bringing the gross of their expenses within the amounts appropriated by Congress.

Especially in the Bureaus of the Army, the Navy and the Treasury, have economical reductions and consolidations been marked. The new army administration began by a reduction of the standing force to the extent of 20,000 men; and this alone, as is estimated, will bring the army expenditure down by $30,000,000 a year. Again, as we have already noted, the Quartermasters' and other civilian employes have been reduced by 6,000,—or, say, by a saving of salaries and wages amounting to $6,000,000, making a total reduction here of $36,000,000.

In the Navy, the reduction of actual force is not so large, because a very great reduction had already been effected. However, immediately on the advent of the new Administration, important economies were effected in bureau work, and, above all, by a careful supervision in certain quarters where large sums had been expended on materiel, these losses or "leakages" were guarded against in future.

In the Treasury Department, over 600 clerks have been dismissed as superfluous since the coming in of the new Administration. The assessors' allowances, for internal revenue, have lately been adjusted so as to save $40,000 odd per annum, and other consolidations and savings are contemplated.

In fine, when we come to reckon up the economy already accomplished, we find that it is not inconsiderable; and we shall thence take encouragement that the good work will go on.

The Pope and the People.

If the utterances of the Pope within the last few years are to be taken as any indication of the questions that are to be brought before the Ecumenical Council, a large place will be given to the relations of Church and State, and to the civil and ecclesiastical changes that have latterly taken place in the Catholic countries of Europe.

With all the Catholic Powers—France only excepted—the Pope is on ill terms. Against all the Liberal movements he has constantly been engaged in uttering his protest. His quarrel with the Kingdom of Italy has existed from the time of its union under VICTOR EMANUEL. It has not merely been because of the Pope's apprehension of the king's purpose regarding Rome, but because the king has sanctioned the action of the Italian Parliament toward the Church. The secularization of ecclesiastical property, the limitation of the power of the priests, the application of the conscription laws to clerical students, the reforms in education, the enlargement of religious freedom, have all been looked on as acts of grievous hostility toward the Church, and His Holiness has spoken of them, from time to time, in terms that showed the intensity of his feeling, and the dread he entertained of their effect upon religion. Against Austria, within the last two years, he has had grounds of complaint similar in many points. The wrangle between the Austrian Bishops and the civil authorities in regard to the new laws of education and marriage, in regard to hierarchical rights, Church rights, State rights and popular rights, has been very bitter; and the troubles have lately become worse than ever, owing to the operation of the constitutional provision requiring that ecclesiastics shall be subject to the laws like other citizens, and prohibiting the enforcement of ecclesiastical penalties by the civil authorities. It is evident from the Allocution of the Pope delivered on Sunday last, that he still regards the movements of Austrian Liberalism as no less dangerous to the Church than those of Italian Liberalism. The same Allocution shows that the recent events in Spain have been "cause of sadness and mourning" to His Holiness. It is not only that the Queen, to whom but lately he sent the rose of virtue and merit, has been dethroned, but the new Constitution permits the establishment of heretical sects in Spain, limits the range of priestly influence, and interferes with the special privileges which the Church has enjoyed for centuries. From these things the Pope considers there are great perils to Catholicity and the interests of religion. With Bavaria, also, there are troubles. In Bavaria there has been no revolution like that of Spain, no radical changes like those in Austria, no steps as objectionable as those in Italy; but the policy of the Government toward the Church has given offence, and is looked on as no less dangerous than that of the other Powers. The recent conduct of the Pope has been such as to alarm the King of Bavaria, and he has been attempting to bring about a Conference of the Catholic Powers, for the purpose of defining the relations of the State to the Church, and upholding each other in such policy as the different States may agree upon as necessary.

For years past, His Holiness has been attempting the settlement of these difficulties,—first with one Government and then with another; but they have steadily grown upon his hands, both in number and magnitude. Though his denunciations have never ceased, they have never availed anything. Though his appeals have been constant, they have never been heeded. Though his diplomacy has been astute, and his agencies of influence numerous, all have failed. But never for ten years have these questions ceased to be uppermost in his mind. And there is no doubt that, in calling an Ecumenical Council, it is the Pope's intention that the power and authority of the Church shall be exercised for their determination.

We do not believe that any intelligent observer of modern European politics can believe that it is in the power of the Church, even when displayed through an Ecumenical Council, to turn the current of Liberalism and progress. Italy cannot go back to the old order of things, even at the bidding of Rome. Austria cannot reverse the policy that has given her, for the first time in her history, freedom with strength and unity. Spain cannot restore the broken power of ISABELLA, or rather the broken power of PHILIP the Second, whose dark and baleful ghost has for centuries brooded over the Peninsula. In no country, in fact, where the modern spirit of liberal progress has obtained possession of the people, is there the slightest chance of the restoration of the old ideas of Bourbonism and ultramontaneism, which, though everywhere tried, have everywhere failed—ruinously and disgracefully failed.

What course, then, remains for the Pope? There is no other course for him but to accept the necessities of the times and the logic of modern politics. Instead of making war upon the State, and assuming a position of antagonism to the growth of popular freedom, he must, as the head of the Church, give Cæsar his dues, and concede to his children that liberty which they are determined to enjoy.

The Safety of Securities—The Robbery of the Ocean Bank.

The robbery of the Ocean National Bank last Sunday, in a manner not differing much from the recent robbery of a Savings Bank in Philadelphia, opens anew the question so often asked, under similar experience, What shall be done for safety? Under the National Banking act, officers of the United States are allowed to examine into the condition of banks during the week; but certain self-organized bodies avail themselves of the Sabbath day for this business, while the officers are attending to their devotions or counting their gains. In this Sunday work, these gentry deliberately examine all assets, and rejecting such as they cannot handle with advantage, make off with the residue. This work is probably done in part under contract by those specially informed about locks; and it could not be much advanced by leaving the doors unlocked after business hours on Saturday until Monday morning.

We advise prudent men, who lodge their tin boxes in bank safes, to select more than one institution, so that these Commissioners may not take their whole earnings, the product perhaps of a lifetime, at one sitting. The example of Mr. STEWART might well be followed by these institutions. No Sunday, no holiday is allowed to pass without his stores being examined on every floor by a trusted and well-guarded employe, and on such days and throughout every night careful watchmen patrol the outside, subject to the inspection of those who know when to expect neglect of duty. Of course one must know whom to employ for this work, or he may find himself in the condition of JOHN RANDOLPH, who feared on the race-course to make a bet, as he could find no satisfactory depositary of the stakes. His antagonist in the proposed bet presently said that Judge DOE would hold them. "Ah, yes," said RANDOLPH, "but who will hold Judge DOE."

The character of the coupon securities of the United States and the rapid creation of national banks during and since the war, have had their share in stimulating these bold robberies. The bonds pass by delivery to a bona-fide holder for a valuable consideration without notice, and more or less of them thus recommended for easy transfer by confederate brokers, and by them to unscrupulous but regular brokers, are held carelessly by managers selected at random in the race for constructing national banks. There has grown up a powerful, skillful and numerous class of robbers who no longer deign to touch the silver spoons and plate which at the outset was all that their education embraced, for the whole capital of a bank is now required to give them satisfaction.

The Bank of England, acting upon experience of men and things, through nearly two centuries, employs a regular force to guard its capital and securities. These are so protected by walls and buildings that the leaders of a mob even forbear to attack the bank. No robber would venture to attempt his operations there, and hence those depositors who know when to sleep quietly and when to be wide awake, sleep soundly after sending their securities to the Bank of England.

It is the misfortune of our country that the scrutiny and care of those employed to conduct many of our banking institutions are far less effective than is the stealthy watchfulness of the robbers who probably have access to income returns; who know the receivers from assistant treasurers of interest moneys; who are the holders of the coupon class of securities, and where they are deposited. The vigilance of those who hold these securities must be as incessant and as intelligent as the clandestine and unperceived watchfulness of robbers is found to have been. The carelessness of others constitutes their opportunity. Many a plan is abandoned because some sagacious mind has placed impediments in their path.

We are told that this and that bank which held deposited securities that have been stolen is not liable, as they were bailers without reward, and took the same care of them as of their own. It should be deemed negligence in a bank served with notice as they all have been that robbery will be attempted, not to use the same vigilance which Mr. STEWART employs in his private business. Who has a right to trust to locks when no lock stands the ordeal to which they are now subjected?

It can scarcely be necessary to have another robbery like this to warn the directors of banks that something must be done from Saturday afternoon to Monday morning besides sitting in an easy chair, while the accumulations of years are stolen. The success of these depredations, most of which go unpunished from the eagerness of losers to have their property restored, invites to repetition; and, if future attempts are not met with defeat and punishment, this despoliation will not only increase in a frightful degree, but will be accompanied by such force as to make private attempts at protection insufficient and perilous.

Henri Rochefort.

Several of our contemporaries, and especially the Tribune, have broken out into lamentations over the "ruthless arrest" and "vindictive imprisonment for three years" of the editor of La Lanterne, or, as they designate him, "the patriot ROCHEFORT." It is a pity that so much sympathy should be wasted, but nothing in the telegraphic dispatch which calls it forth affords any ground for supposing that M. ROCHEFORT'S person has been seized or that he is in the least danger of incarceration. The worst that has befallen him is the loss of his rights of citizenship for three years, which, under existing circumstances, is probably a matter of indifference to him and his friends. It should be understood that the French Courts, when they cannot conveniently lay hold of political offenders, have a method of passing sentence precisely as if the alleged criminals were in their power. Thus, certain supposed enemies to the existence of NAPOLEON III. have, in times past, been formally condemned to death, notwithstanding which they may still be seen by those who care to look for them, enjoying their daily maccaroni under the soft Italian sky with as much relish as the hosts of unconvicted felons that surround them. M. ROCHEFORT, who fled from France when his weekly pamphlet was suppressed a year ago, has not since set foot upon his native soil, unless, possibly, in disguise, and the only object of the Government in dealing with him as it has just done is to prolong his exile and, by depriving him of citizens' rights, to make it impossible for his adherents to send him to the Corps Legislatif. Under these circumstances we cannot award him the first place in the ranks of modern martyrs.

Whatever the political condition of France, and gloomy enough it undoubtedly is, there are many who doubt the possibility of improving it by the course which agitators of M. ROCHEFORT'S stamp seem determined to pursue. Although for many years a writer of acknowledged power in the liberal journals of Paris, he is known to the outside world only by the persecutions he has brought upon himself through the publication of La Lanterne. This pungent periodical was established with the professed purpose of ridiculing and defying the Government in every way that the rancorous imagination of the editor could devise. From the first number, it showed little disposition toward serious consideration of public affairs, and devoted itself almost exclusively to bitter personal invectives against individuals. Many of these were extremely amusing, no doubt, but not even the brightness of M. ROCHEFORT'S satire could have enlivened for any length of time such stale topics as the Emperor's paternity, the private vices of his family, and kindred scandals with which he struggled week after week to entertain his readers. Popular curiosity was excited to see how long his audacity would be tolerated, and with the seizure of a particular issue, which, by-the-bye, contained nothing more obnoxious than any of its predecessors, public interest in La Lanterne culminated. M. ROCHEFORT betook himself to Belgium, established his paper anew, and for a few weeks retained some hold upon the attention of Parisians by the ingenuity of his schemes for smuggling large editions into France. But for nearly a year nothing worth noticing has been heard of him. The whole business is very much like child's play on both sides. The Government at first allowed La Lanterne full scope for about three months, and then, upon no special provocation, abruptly suppressed it. M. ROCHEFORT ran away, and hurled defiance from a safe distance. After languishing in comparative oblivion for many months, he is now suggested by his friends as an eligible candidate for legislative honors, whereupon the Government institutes a fresh prosecution, and records sentence against him as already announced. The only result will be to again awaken a momentary interest in La Lanterne. M. ROCHEFORT will once more tell us all about the secret history of the BONAPARTE family, and will prove to his own satisfaction that the Empire is staggering to its doom. After which affairs will flow on as before, guided by stronger hands than those of the implacable journalist or his oppressors.

The Spanish Republicans and the Cortes.

The Spanish Republicans are now beginning to experience the difficulties of their position. They accepted the Constitution in good faith, and as far as we can hear, have refrained from taking any steps inconsistent with their oath. But it seems to be the determination of the dominant party in the Cortes to accuse them of complicity with the republican demonstrations which have occurred in various parts of Spain, and they have been reminded in a very cavalier tone that their presence in the Cortes is only tolerated at the will of the majority. It looks as if certain parties in Spain were trying the Napoleonic stratagem of frightening people into acceptance of their policy by representing anarchy as the only alternative, and charging upon the Republicans the odium and responsibility of all political disturbances. The Republican leaders, however, do not seem inclined to submit tamely to such treatment, and intend to propose a vote of censure against the Ministers who used the offensive expressions. They cannot carry it, of course, but they can clear themselves from false charges, and expose the arbitrary conduct of the majority. And their popular strength in Madrid and all the large cities in Spain is amply sufficient to protect them against anything like a coup d'état, or an attempt to expel them from the Cortes. But it is unfortunate that all parties in Spain cannot agree to postpone their differences until certain questions which affect the nation much more immediately than those at issue between the Monarchists and the Republicans are satisfactorily settled.

MINOR TOPICS.

The successive daily reports from the French cable show that the Great Eastern is laying it down at the regular rate of one hundred miles per day. It was Monday of last week that the vessel started, and up to noon of Monday last she had run 823 knots from Brest, and paid out 916 knots of cable. The difference between the distance run and the line paid out is, of course, owing to the irregularities of surface of the ocean's bottom. If all goes well, the Great Eastern will reach St. Pierre in the early part of next week.

We are pleased to observe that both of our Parisian correspondents have spoken of the energetic efforts of Minister WASHBURNE to secure the release of the American gentlemen who were summarily arrested, and brutally maltreated by the French Police at the late riots in Paris. The account of the affair which we had yesterday was enough to arouse the indignation of all Americans. The Government ought to direct further inquiry into the case, and there ought to be a protest against such procedure toward Americans who happen to be in Paris during a riot or a revolutionary outbreak. "Civis Romanus sum."

"J. MACGREGOR, Captain canoe Rob Roy, and JAMES MEVARDS, Captain canoe Ringleader," have issued a challenge on the part of the British Canoe Club, addressed to the Secretary of the Harvard University Boat Club, begging him to send a "canoeist" over to England to contend for the honors of being known as "the fastest canoeist in the world" on behalf of the United States. England will have a candidate ready and the attendance of a representative from Canada has been invited—the terms being a two-mile course over smooth water, and the only conditions as to the nature of craft employed being that they shall be "propelled by one man facing the bow." France will not be represented, as it seems that the only member of the Club in that country is the Prince Imperial, whose membership must at present be honorary alike to the Club and himself. We presume Mr. MACGREGOR himself, of Roo Roy fame, will be the English competitor. Is no American forthcoming to wrest from him the proud title of "the fastest canoeist in the world?"

The Common Council has determined to have fireworks on the Fourth, although there is no money in the Treasury, and the law forbids any appropriation to be made. Thirty thousand dollars is to be expended, $22,000 for fireworks, and the remainder for music, flags, &c. Of the $22,000 it is whispered that the commission to be paid by the person supplying the fireworks amounts to $4,000. His profits must be very large, as he undertakes to wait until next year before he gets his money.

TENNYSON has long charmed the world with his "Enoch Arden," but the Enoch who has just been developed here is disgusting. The poetical Enoch did the genteel thing, and was duly miserable, but our prosaic Enoch, not being informed of the possibilities of the occasion, claimed his wife and got her. Not only that, but he and Mrs. Enoch are alleged to have "put up a job" on husband No. 2, whereby he was got into jail as the swiftest means of getting rid of him. It is a sad admission, but this is the sort of thing Enoch Ardens are apt to do in real life.

Not long ago we published a list of the various establishments in the City where explosive illuminating oils were retailed to the public, together with the results of analyses made by Professor CHANDLER, showing plainly the dangerous character of ordinary samples purchased at those places. The exposé was a startling one, and the Board of Health threatened immediate prosecution of the offenders. The Fire Commissioners also undertook an investigation of the matter, which resulted in a complete confirmation of the frightful reports of the chemist. Notwithstanding the clearness of the testimony in the case, and the unquestionable authority of both of the Boards to prosecute, nothing has thus far been done in that direction. Meanwhile, the sale of the vile stuff has been continued, and several lives have lately been lost, which might have been spared if the law had been enforced. When either of the Boards do proceed against these establishments, (if they ever do,) they will miss one of the worst of them—a place in East Broadway where nearly pure naphtha was sold under the name of "liquid gas." A barrel of this liquid exploded a few nights since and cleaned out the store most thoroughly. Shall not the other marked establishments be closed too?

The Gettysburg Monument which is to be dedicated to-morrow, is far less of an affront to refined taste than such things usually are, and it is, therefore, all the more to be regretted that the Commissioners to whom we owe it have burdened it with an inscription which, as it stands, is in many respects singularly inappropriate. The inscription is the latter part of President LINCOLN'S address delivered at Gettysburg, in November, 1863, but it omits the sentence: "The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here." These few words would have indicated the story of the battle in all coming time, and we regret that the Commissioners did not engrave them and nothing else upon the monument which marks the culminating point of the great conflict.

Public safety demands that the recent "accident" at the crossing of the Harlem Railroad by the Belt street railway, shall be rigidly investigated, and the responsibility being fixed, that exemplary punishment shall follow. If street-car conductors and locomotive engineers are to make a practice of racing for precedence at the various points in the City where the track of the one crosses that of the other, they have added a new peril to Metropolitan life, of which our citizens should be informed. In the present case only a boy was killed and a man maimed, but if this criminal recklessness is to continue, street railway transit must soon become so dangerous that no passenger can obtain accident insurance. The matter must be reformed altogether, and we hope the present case affords the needed incentive to prompt and decided action by the authorities.

The opinions of Inspector-General MARCY on the Indian question sustain the Indian policy of our Government. He shows that where the Indians—such as the Cherokees, Chickasaws, Choctaws, Creeks, &c.—have been allowed to have a permanent holding of their lands they have done very well, and his opinion that these lands should not be in any national thoroughfare is worthy of consideration. The same may be said of his suggestions about the employment of missionaries among them; and it is very evident that the latter could do more good among the Red Indians than among any other heathen in the world. Our missionary societies may find a good deal of common sense in this opinion of a military man.

Sunday School excursions and picnics are rapidly passing out of vogue in this section of the country. The Protestants don't want them, and the Roman Catholics are forbidden them; so, between the two, the custom will probably soon be extinct. The Protestants have thrown them aside as a child would a toy of which it was tired, while the Catholics have reluctantly forsaken them in obedience to ecclesiastical direction, which grew out of certain gross irregularities which beset them. Strawberry and musical festivals have, in a measure, taken their place, and are so popular that the others are scarcely missed.

The mania for velocipedestrianism, like other popular manias, has evidently had its day, and is now well nigh obsolete. A little while longer, and we venture to say that this uncertain vehicle will have entirely disappeared from our streets and parks, and the few "riding halls" in which they are found to-day, and "the places that know them now will know them no more, forever." If all that medical men say of their injurious effects upon both the sexes is true, their disappearance will be no loss, and we need not, therefore, mourn their departure. What will the next novelty be?

VICE-PRESIDENT COLFAX.

His Speech in Providence—The War Spirit—The Administration—Retrenchment and Reform.

The Providence Journal publishes a report of the address which Vice-President COLFAX made at the reception tendered him in that city on Monday morning. We make the following extracts:

"That able writer and profound thinker, Professor DRAPER, of the New-York University, in his interesting and instructive works, condenses all history into a theory for which he has written these works, that have added such honor to his name and added so much glory and just renown to American literature. It is, that nations are under a law of growth, like individuals; that they have their periods of birth, of infancy, of youth, of manhood, of prime and maturity, and of decay and old age. And as it is the duty of the physician, ministering to the ills that afflict the body of the individual, to endeavor to postpone that final consummation which must at last come to all that is earthly—to prolong the life by preventing the life-blood from being exhausted, keeping the flush of life upon the cheek, and the bounding blood in the vein of the individual so is it the duty of the statesman, and of those who represent you in public affairs at your national capital, to endeavor to so perform their duties that this final stage of decay and old age may be as far as possible postponed. It is with that thought I desire to bring before you to-day, in the few words I shall speak to you. It is that thought that has animated my public life, and, I believe, the public life of those who represent the people of New-England. I conceive that sometimes there must be exhaustion of the blood that runs in the veins of our great body politic. When a great rebellion lifts its black flag of treason, striking at the heart of the nation, the nation must shed its blood to preserve the national existence. But there is no other occasion that I can contemplate as within the range of possibilities in which those who are charged with the conduct of your public affairs should willingly resort to war. War drains the blood from the nation. War exhausts the resources of a republic, an empire or a kingdom. War carries anguish and desolation into households throughout the land. War piles up debt and taxes upon the shoulders of the people, and although there may be glory, as there is in the heroism of the battle field, unless in a sacred cause, like that for the preservation of national existence or for the redress of wrong that can in no other way be redressed, there is no justification for war in a great republic like ours. It is this, my friends, I say to you, in antagonism to the military spirit which has been fostered to some extent in the great trial of the nation in its warfare against rebellion—it is this which is the danger to a republic like ours. With peace at home, with concord restored in all branches and sections of our Union, we shall go forward with the stately steppings of a giant, to that culminating point where we shall stand peerless among the nations of the world. Nor do I agree with those who, fearing a danger that may possibly come to us, speak of these troubles that afflict our body politic, and of the evils that sometimes are inherent in our human legislation, as the precursors of a downfall of the republic. Nor do I concur with those who insist upon it that in this nation of ours the poor are trodden under foot. I know in this land as in all other lands there is in all portions of it, to some extent, poverty, destitution and distress. It is inseparable from mankind, from the Garden of Eden until this time, that there shall be misery among us, as we walk in life's pathway, as a nation or an individual, to the tomb. But looking over the world for its verdict and for its judgment, appealing to all civilized lands for the proof of what I say to you, I assert that there is no land existing upon any of the continents of this globe that is so much a paradise to the poor man as the Republic of the United States of America. Go with me to all other lands where poverty is the rule and not the exception, as it is here. Go with me to the banks of the Rhine, to the Shannon, to the Danube, and around the Mediterranean, and far off upon the Pacific shores, and to what land does the poor man look with longing in his heart, hoping that he may have means to emigrate thither and enjoy the coveted civil and religious liberty? Do they talk of emigrating to England with its historic renown? Do they talk of going to France? Do they talk even of going to Prussia, that nation which has so lifted itself among the nations of the earth by its military prowess, and the wisdom of its rulers, within the last few years? Do they talk of going to Russia or elsewhere? Oh, no. All around the world, from continent to continent, wherever the poor man seeks to better his condition, his eyes, and his heart, and his thought, and his hopes are bent upon this Republic of ours. It is not my testimony, it is the testimony of the toiling millions that inhabit all the continents of this globe. And so it is and so it will be if we are faithful to the inheritance that God has given us. The lesson of the hour, the duty of the day, the imperative obligation upon those holding the reins of public affairs, is to appreciate and to promote the greatness and the development of this Republic of ours. No land has ever had, no people has ever had, such a birthright, such a heritage as ours; stretching from continent to continent in the temperate zone, which is the governing zone of the world, with its shores washed by the waters of the two great oceans of the globe; with mineral resources and agricultural resources that are peerless among all other lands beneath the sky; with the rich mining regions of the West; and with the grain fields of the Mississippi Valley, which, if needed, could be the granary of the entire world; with your commercial advantages, and your manufacturing advantages; with the free institutions you enjoy here; who can bound or limit the future of this land, to whose open gates the hundreds of thousands are flocking to-day? Although I shall not transgress the bounds, and speak in regard to any mere partisan issue of the day, I rejoice with you that you have an Administration, in power at Washington, and I allude now to your President, which is faithful to this great country. I pass by those petty bickerings about the distribution of patronage, with the single remark that if he had been inspired he could not have satisfied the one-tenth of those who desired to serve the public in its offices of honor or of profit. That is but a slight ripple upon the wave; for when you look at the Administration that is given to you, you find, already shining out upon it in letters of glittering light, that word which you have longed to see in high places at Washington—that word that goes to your heart—and that is, HONESTY—which is the corner-stone, upon which the policy of the Administration is securely grounded. You know that whether the President has made this man Postmaster or that man Collector, or whether he has distributed this vast patronage just exactly as you, or I, or anybody else would have desired to have it distributed; you know that in that heart which beats in his bosom there is no thought except for the country. And you know, amidst that you can see written upon the portals of the White House that other word which you have longed for in years past to see, and that is, ECONOMY in the public service. You

YALE COLLEGE.

The Festivities of Presentation Week Continued—Professor Dana on Corals—The Wooden Spoon—College Gossip.

From Our Special Correspondent.

NEW-HAVEN, Tuesday, June 29, 1869.

New-Haven is full of people. The pretty girls from all the country round have moved en masse upon the devoted city, and are ravaging the hearts of the susceptible students who thoughtlessly gave the fair cohorts admission within the walls of the citadel. At Concert Hall, last night, the soirée was attended by a brilliant throng. Beauty in gorgeous toilette took possession of the building, and enmeshed the undergraduate gallants that whirled with them in the giddy mazes to such an extent that few escaped heart-free. The party broke up at a late hour; but as there was nothing notable to take place this morning, those who attended it had time for an extra nap, and many were late to breakfast.

LECTURE BY PROFESSOR DANA.

This afternoon, in the Philosophical Lecture-room in the Cabinet building, Dr. JAMES D. DANA, Silliman Professor of Geology and Mineralogy, delivered the final lecture of his course before the Senior Class and an audience of the friends of the students, which completely filled the hall. It was a highly-instructive discourse on "Corals," a theme concerning which no man in the country has a larger and more varied knowledge, or is capable of imparting it in a more interesting manner. The Professor has gone to the uttermost parts of the earth in person to pursue his researches in the fields of his favorite sciences, and the charming simplicity of his language and manner in making known the great facts that he has acquired by dint of labor and loving zeal, add very greatly to the pleasure of those who listen to him. He is much esteemed by the students. The lecture was illustrated with maps and charts; and the Professor exhibited a number of splendid specimens of coral. He related many amusing experiences of his own among the islands of the Pacific, telling, among other things, how he and his party visited a coral island, the natives of which imagined that their little islet comprised the entire world. Having seen the sun at noon and at evening, apparently touching the sea, they concluded that the strangers had stepped from it into their boat and were gods who had come to pay them a friendly visit. Impressed with this belief, they treated their visitors with great deference; but did not forget to steal sundry articles of value from them before they departed. Thus every where, the lecturer said, the vanity and vice of man mars the most beautiful works of the Creator—even these lovely isles of coral in the midst of the Pacific. The enthusiasm of the students and their friends was not to be restrained, and during and at the close of the lecture they gave the Professor hearty applause.

THE "WOODEN-SPOON" EXHIBITION.

This evening the wooden-spoon exhibition is taking place at the Music Hall. The throng is immense. The exhibition is a great event in New-Haven life, and no one fails to be present who can possibly obtain admission. The students themselves regard it as a great occasion, and spare no pains to make it so. Indeed, they seem to enjoy it more than they do the solemn occasions of Commencement Day and bidding farewell to college scenes. It is a prevailing notion among those who have not "been there," and even with many forgetful ones who have, that the severing of college ties is a severe operation for the young student who has put all his Greek and Latin behind him, and is about to step forth into the cold world.

A MISTAKEN NOTION.

It is a mistaken idea. To the mere spectator it seems as if there might be deep regrets at leaving the little world in which one has moved so long. Students, in their farewell addresses, find this a fruitful theme, and dwell upon it with all the pathos they can command. But within their own hearts they feel it a relief to be set free from their involuntary servitude to study, and find themselves at liberty to strike out for themselves in the broad sea of life. The new-fledged bird does not linger in the nest wishing that its wings had never grown, but poises them with a new feeling of power for a flight into regions hitherto unexplored. Youth is strong and ambitious. It does not look backward. Before it all kinds of possibilities are spread, and it longs to attempt them. It is in after years, when the vanity of early hopes has been fully ascertained, and many a feather has been plucked from the pinion, that we fold the broken wing and look backward with vain longings to the days of youth and large hope, and ignorant, blissful anticipations. And then we think of those who are just leaving the nest, and imagine that they must be as loth to go forth as we now should be. The grotesque observances of the wooden-spoon celebration are much more in accordance with the view that the graduating men of Yale take of the occasion of their departure than the more serious exercises of Commencement Day. They would rather dance at the wake of the old life, than follow its coffin to the grave. They do the burlesque with more zest than they bring to the tragedy, and spend more time in concocting new devilries than in writing Commencement speeches. Thus it is that the mockeries of the wooden spoon and the semi-serious rites of class day are come to be regarded as the great features of Presentation week at Yale, while the original ceremony which gives it the name is almost lost sight of.

INITIATION INTO THE SECRET SOCIETIES.

After the wooden spoon exhibition to-night, somewhere between midnight and early morning, the Junior elect are initiated into the dread mysteries of the Senior Societies. The statement in the TIMES that six Juniors, who had been elected members of the Skull and Bones, had declined to accept, needs some explanation. Five of these were already pledged to the Scroll and Key, when the other Society, without first soliciting, elected them.

BOAT RACE BETWEEN YALE AND HARVARD.

Among the outdoor sports of the Yale College men boating and base ball hold a high place. Each class has its boats—among them several beautiful shells—and numbers some accomplished oarsmen. The University crew is practicing, under the guidance of two of the WARD brothers, for the coming race with the Harvard crew, which takes place at Worcester the day after Commencement (July 23.) You have already published the names of the crew. Since then one change has been made in the list. EDGAR D. COONLEY, Sophomore, takes the place of ORLANDO COPE, of the Junior Class.

BASE BALL—MATCH GAMES.

Next Monday the match at base ball between the Yale University Nine and the Harvard University Nine takes place at the Union Grounds, Williamsburg. The Yale Nine are: Richards, Hooker, McCutchen, French, Wheeler, McClintock, Deming, Condict and Lewis. Next Saturday the Freshman Nine of Yale play the Freshman Nine of Harvard at Springfield. It is a hopeful sign that physical training is coming to be regarded as of some little value, as well as mental training, among American students. Both go to the formation of the perfect man.

PRINCETON COLLEGE.

President McCosh's First Baccalaureate Sermon—Centennial of the American Whig Society—Orations and Exercises.

MANSION HOUSE, PRINCETON, N. J., Tuesday, June 29, 1869.

From Our Special Correspondent.

The annual literary festivities of this venerable College of New-Jersey have again recurred. They have been thus far invested with peculiar interest from the popularity of President McCOSH and the fact of its being the first Commencement season which has occurred during his administration.

The usual Baccalaureate discourse was given to the graduating class in the First Presbyterian Church last Sunday evening. The venerable President selected his text from John xiv., 6: "I am the way, the truth and the life," and by the natural order, unfolded the essential relationship of our Lord to his people, and in a simple and effective manner applied the subject to the young men addressed.

The College grounds presented an animated scene this morning. The delightful weather, with the occurrence of the Centennial of the American Whig Society, attracted a large number of Alumni and friends of the College to the festivities of the day. The Whig Hall was beautifully decorated in honor of the occasion. After mutual greetings and inspection of the grounds and buildings so familiar and dear to all the sons of Nassau Hall, a procession was formed in front of the hall and moved through the College Campus to the First Presbyterian Church. Hon. WM. C. ALEXANDER, of New-York, presided, supported by the historian and orator of the day, the Faculty of the College and Ex-President MCLEAN and the Trustees.

The President of the day presented the historian of the Society, Professor HENRY C. CAMERON, of the College, who, in a clear and pleasant manner, sketched the origin of the Society on June 24, 1769. The custom of delivering annual orations began in 1825. The present hall was erected thirty years since through the munificence of Hon. ROBERT F. STOCKTON, who gave $4,000 for the purpose. After the close of Professor CAMERON'S historical sketch, Hon. RICHARD S. FIELD, of the United States Supreme Court, delivered an excellent oration.

An hour's intermission then occurred, and the procession was formed and moved to the chapel of the Second Presbyterian Church, where a bountiful collation was spread. Spirited addresses were made by Judge SLAWSON, of New-YORK; Hon. JOHN F. NIXON, of Bridgeton, N. J.; Hon. ASHBELL GREEN, of New-York; President MCCOSH, Ex-President MCLEAN, Rev. NOAH SCHENCK, D. D., of Brooklyn, and others.

Commencement at Harvard College—The Honorary Degrees.

BOSTON, Tuesday, June 29.

Commencement at Harvard College to-day attracted a large number of visitors, as usual. Governor CLAFLIN and staff, escorted by the National Lancers, reached Cambridge about 11 o'clock, when the procession, consisting of the graduating class, distinguished guests, the President and Faculty of the College, and others, moved across the College grounds to the First Parish Church, where the exercises of graduation were held. The Church was well filled. The literary exercises were of the usual character and received the usual attention. The following honorary degrees were conferred at the close of the exercises:

Doctor of LAWS—JOHN GORDON PALFREY, of Cambridge; WM. CLAFLIN, of Newton. Master of ARTS—ALGERNON COOLIDGE, of Boston; JOHN KNOWLES PAINE, of Cambridge.

At a business meeting of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, held in University Hall, the following were chosen officers for the ensuing year:

President, J. RUSSELL LOWELL; Vice-President, R. H. DANA, Jr.; Secretary, E. P. SEAVER; Treasurer, HENRY G. DEWEY.

It was voted to grant a charter to A. A. ANDREWS and seven other members of the Junior class of Cornell University for the establishment of a branch society. Attorney-General HOAR was present at the meeting.

A SCENE IN COURT.

Trial of Mrs. E. A. Pollard for Assault upon Dr. Moore, of Baltimore—Her Conviction and Sentence.

From the Baltimore Sun, June 29.

It will be remembered that on the 28th of January, 1868, Mrs. MARIA N. POLLARD, wife of E. A. POLLARD, was arrested in this city on the charge of shooting with intent to kill Dr. GEO. A. MOORE, a druggist, doing business on the corner of Hanover and Hill streets. After remaining in jail for some days, she was discharged on her own recognizance to appear when wanted. In the meantime the Grand Jury found an indictment against the lady for common assault. The case has been postponed from term to term, and the community seemed to have lost sight of it entirely, but it having been set for trial yesterday, Mrs. POLLARD, who has been sojourning in Washington, was notified of the fact, and on the opening of the Criminal Court yesterday morning she made her appearance, accompanied by a male friend.

The lady was richly habited in a thin dress of dark material, cut very low at the neck, so as to exhibit to the best advantage an unusually well-developed bust, but her face was so thickly veiled that very few knew her in the densely-crowded court-room, even after she had taken a seat in the witness-box, although many curious eyes were turned toward the spot in which she sat. When, however, the case of MOORE vs. POLLARD was called, Mrs. POLLARD, accompanied by JOHN WILLS, Esq., left the witness box and took a seat among the lawyers, and she at once became the great object of attention, as much on account of the previous notoriety of her case as for the present style of dress assumed by her on this occasion. As the lady was without counsel, Mr. WILLS so informed the Court, and Judge GILMOR directed him to conduct the defence.

The case was put upon trial before the Court, a jury being waived. Dr. GEO. A. MOORE and his two assistants then gave their evidence. The physicians who attended Dr. MOORE followed, and testified as to the extent of the wound inflicted by the pistol ball, which passed through Dr. MOORE'S wrist, doing injury to the muscles that used the thumb joint.

Mr. WILLS cross-questioned the witnesses, and then, by permission of the Court, took the stand and detailed his former professional connection with Mrs. POLLARD, giving it as his deliberate judgment that at the time of the commission of the alleged assault the accused was not of sound mind.

The counsel for the prisoner then asked Judge GILMOR if he would listen to a statement from the accused, which request the Judge said he would grant only provided Mr. KNOTT, the State's attorney, and Mr. MILTON WHITNEY, counsel for Dr. MOORE, did not object. These gentlemen having signified their willingness, Mrs. POLLARD was led to the witness stand by Mr. WILLS, and after removing the thick green veil that enveloped her face, she proceeded in detail to the Court the history of the wrongs she claimed to have received at the hands of E. A. POLLARD, led on and encouraged, as she alleged, by Dr. MOORE. She concluded a rather lengthy story by stating that inch by inch had been deprived by these men of all she possessed except her honor, and that could only be taken with her life. She also stated that she bore no relationship whatever to Mr. POLLARD, his treatment of her having been of such a character as to compel her to apply for a divorce, which was now pending. She did not deny the assault charged, but claimed that Dr. MOORE had denied having had any knowledge of the whereabouts of POLLARD; that he had told her he had not seen him for months, although she had seen him enter and depart from MOORE'S house only the night previous, and his constant interference between her husband and herself had driven her to frenzy. Judge GILMOR then reviewed the case, and finally concluded by declaring the witness guilty of common assault as charged in the indictment, and sentenced her to be confined in jail for thirty days.

Upon this announcement a scene followed not often witnessed in a court of justice. Mrs. POLLARD rose with outstretched hands, and in a frenzied manner cried out, "Oh, Judge, do not send me to prison!" she then fell on her knees and again appealed to the Judge, saying, "For the sake of my more than orphaned children, do not deprive them of the protection of a mother." She then sank with her head on the knees of Mr. WILLS, her counsel, uttering hysterical sobs, until Messrs. IRVIN and CARTER, Deputy Wardens of the jail, appeared, and, as delicately as possible, removed her to the office of the Clerk of the Court. Judge GILMOR was evidently much moved, but preserved his equanimity, and the business of the Court proceeded. In the meantime Mrs. POLLARD went on with her excited outcries in the Clerk's office, and succeeded in attracting a considerable crowd. When the Court adjourned, Deputy Warden IRVIN removed the prisoner, amid her continued excitement, to a hack standing on Lexington-street, and, accompanied by the gentleman who came with her from Washington, she was conveyed to jail, where she now remains.

A Stage Containing Seventeen Persons Demolished by a Railroad Train.

From the Cincinnati Gazette, June 26.

On Saturday afternoon a party of ladies and gentlemen went out on the Chevoit pike on a picnic excursion, and remained very late. Their conveyance was an omnibus chartered from the Cincinnati Omnibus Company. It was 3:30 Sunday morning when the vehicle, laden with seventeen persons, attempted on its return to the city to cross the track of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railroad at Ernst's Station. It will be remembered a large brewery stands on the north side of the road at that point. The driver was coming down at a good speed, and did not see the danger into which he was running until his horses—the leaders—were across the track and the wheel-horses standing right on it. He then saw the Marietta train coming full speed. To go one foot further was to expose seventeen persons to instant death. Crossing was impossible. In backing out there was a chance of safety. No time was to be lost. The driver decided in an instant, and commenced backing his team. It was too late; the locomotive came like a thunderbolt and struck out the wheel-horse from between the leaders and the omnibus, picked up the omnibus as with the hands of a Titan, up-ended it in the air and hurled it upon the hard road. An upper corner touching first. It was shivered to fragments. The lead-horses were pitched out twenty feet in the opposite direction, and left there crippled. The wheel-horses were, of course, killed. So utterly was the omnibus destroyed that the company will not attempt to repair it. The driver, H. ALCOE, received serious injuries. Beyond a big scare and half a dozen little scratches distributed among as many passengers, one to each, no other bodily harm was done.

TENNESSEE.

Progress of the Canvass and its Character—Prospects of the Candidates—Brownlow the Second "Moses" of the Blacks—They Denounce him as a Follower of Johnson.

From Our Own Correspondent.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Thursday, June 24, 1869.

The canvass between SENTER and STOKES attracts more attention beyond the limits of the State than within our own borders. Although there is a great, vital principle which lies at the very foundation of our theory of government at issue, our people—the voters, I should say—seem to manifest but little interest in the discussion between the two aspirants for Gubernatorial honors. The best reason I can give for this state of affairs is that our candidates are sinking the grave issue into a personal, partisan quarrel, in which the people have little interest. I listened very attentively to one of their discussions, and was pained to think they would prefer indulging in low personal vituperation, when there were the most serious questions involved in the canvass, upon which the people were asking information. The effect of such discussions is perhaps as forcibly expressed in a few remarks I overheard while passing through the crowd, as in any terms of which I could make use. In reply to a question as to what he thought of the candidates, one old farmer, in his own style, replied: "Well, I listened at them both all the way through, and according to the stories they tell on each other, they were both darn mean rebels, and I can't vote for any sich."

Another answer to a similar question from a shrewd old citizen was, "Well, if I thought one-half of what they charge each other with was true, I couldn't believe either of them on oath." So far as I can learn, they have persisted in this style of discussion all through East Tennessee, and the people are dissatisfied.

They ask for bread and get stones. They know and realize the desperate, deplorable condition of the State, financially and otherwise, and they anxiously hoped they might gather information from such public discussions as have been held; but in place of a fair, able, honest statement of facts and intelligent discussion thereon, they are nauseated with a rehash of the personal vituperation of the war. Never was there a more important canvass in this State. I do not know of a State so thoroughly hacked and ruined by corrupt partisan legislation and wholesale public plundering, and yet such things are entirely ignored, and the only point involved, in the estimation of STOKES and HUNTER, is as to which went farthest into the rebellion.

We have a State debt weighing down upon us of $40,000,000. It is notorious that no measures have been taken to pay the July interest on this debt, and that our State credit is to-day subject to the schemes of corrupt, designing public officers.

Nearly every man connected with the State Government for the past two years has been identified with the worst schemes of corruption. And yet such facts are studiously avoided in the canvass, and day after day our people are subjected to hearing a bitter personal controversy between the candidates for our highest office.

While the canvass so far as Governor is concerned is exciting but little interest, the people in most of the counties are earnestly working to secure good men as candidates for the Assembly. This is, after all, the most important part of the election, and if we can only secure an honest, intelligent body of legislators, we will be able to put an end to the schemes of wholesale plundering, which have been the great evil of our time. The Legislature, too, is the power to dispose of the franchise question. In some counties our very best men are entering for the race, and I hope to report more brains and integrity in our next Legislature.

The result of the election will depend entirely upon the course Governor SENTER pursues upon the franchise question. Under the wise (!) laws of Governor BROWNLOW'S Administration he decides the election. This is no exaggeration. He can, in fact, control the election, and it would be singular indeed if he did not shape events so as to secure his own success. It has been the aim of STOKES to secure a pledge from him that he would not disturb the registration, but give him a fair opportunity. This SENTER dare not promise. He is now fairly committed to universal suffrage, and he is certain of defeat upon that issue, if he submits it to those only who are to-day voters under the law. The majority of the Republican Party in Tennessee is against him on that issue. If he is determined on success, his only relief is in a sweeping change of Registrars and a prompt enfranchisement in every county. This is, I think, determined upon. Already the Democrats are demanding action in this direction, and we hear threats daily that unless he soon begins this work it will be too late. Changes have been made in some counties. I know of one county in East Tennessee in which there is not now a disfranchised man. Certificates have been furnished every one known to be in need of them, and that county is of course strong SENTER. STOKES will go out of East Tennessee with 25,000 majority, which must be overcome by new voters.

Some counties gain heavily by the recent decision of the Supreme Court; but there is still a large Radical majority to overcome, and unless the Commissioners are soon set to work there will be great danger to the Governor's interests.

Two new candidates are in the field—one LEATHERMAN, a Conservative, and one DOUGHTY, a Radical. Neither is recognized, and they will get no votes.

The sudden and great change of front made by some of the leaders still provokes the people to astonishment and leaves them in doubt as to their situation. A great many are still taking their soundings and anticipating further storms and breakers. The blacks are most confounded and surprised. They were well grounded in their faith that in BROWNLOW, the "rebel ventilator" and "uncompromising foe," they had secured their Moses. BROWNLOW loved to recite to them the story of JOHNSON'S betrayal and apostacy, and he had quite persuaded them that he would be their Moses and lead them into full possession of their promised land. But now even he has deserted them, and they are left to marvel at the wickedness of human kind. A few nights ago, in their secret league, I am informed, they gave expression to their indignation, and passed resolutions denouncing BROWNLOW and others for deserting them and giving them over to the enemy. I have been in several different counties within the past ten days, and on every hand I hear bitter curses upon BROWNLOW and his kind. This feeling is intensified from the fact that he is not credited with sincerity at all, but is believed to have changed front in the midst of action because forced to it by the straits of the men who lead this new movement.

The Stokes interest in the Whig has been purchased by the Senterites, and it is now devoted to its new calling with zeal peculiar to new converts. The Stokes men are wanting in thorough active newspaper coöperation.

Burning of the Ashton Salt Mill in Geddes.

From the Syracuse Journal, June 26.

About 11 o'clock last night the large wooden salt mill, situated in Geddes, and known as the "Ashton Salt Mill," was discovered to be on fire. The mill, owing to the inflammable material of which it was constructed, was soon entirely enveloped in flames. The fire soon communicated to a large double salt block adjoining it, which in turn was being rapidly consumed. When the double block had become partially burned, the flames communicated to another single block adjoining, which, with the double block and mill, were entirely consumed. The loss sustained by the Ashton Company will not fall far short of $50,000, and we understand there is no insurance. Some eight hundred barrels of salt just packed were destroyed. The fire originated in the drying room, and owing to the want of proper apparatus for putting out fires, of which there is none in Geddes, the result is as above stated.

THE TEST OATH IN VIRGINIA.

Important Letter from General Canby, Commanding the First Military District.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST MILITARY DISTRICT, STATE OF VIRGINIA, RICHMOND, Va., June 26, 1869.

Mr. B. W. Gillis, Richmond Va.:

SIR: I have received your note of the 23d inst., and will state in reply to the inquiries therein made:

First—That I have uniformly held that members of the General Assembly and State officers to be elected on the 6th proximo, would be required to take, before entering upon the duties of their offices, the oath prescribed by the law of July 2, 1862, unless the Constitution should first be approved by Congress, or the oath be otherwise dispensed with by law.

Second—That this decision is in conformity with the action heretofore taken upon the same subject in another district, and was based upon a careful consideration of all the laws bearing upon the question now presented.

The sixth section of the law of March 2, 1867, provides "That until the people of the said rebel States shall be by law admitted to representation in the Congress of the United States, any Government which may exist therein shall be deemed provisional only, and in all respects subject to the paramount authority of the United States to abolish, modify, control, or supersede the same." The conditions that must precede this admission to representation are prescribed by the fifth section of the same law, the fifth section of the law of March 29, 1867, and the sixth section of the law of April 10, 1869. The same section prescribes the qualifications of voters in all elections to office, and the qualifications (eligibility) of office under such Provisional Governments. The supplementary law of March 23, 1867, modified the qualifications of voters by prescribing registration as one determining the conditions essential to registration, and the amendatory law of March 13, 1868, section 2, applied the same qualifications (registered voters) to the voters for members of the House of Representatives of the United States, and all elective offices provided for by those Constitutions, at the elections to be held upon the questions of ratifying or rejecting the proposed Constitutions, and the ninth section of the law of July 19, 1867, imposes an additional qualification upon the officers by requiring that they shall take the oath of office prescribed by the law of July 2, 1862.

Under the original law of March 3, 1867, (section 5,) it was in the power of the District Commander to prescribe an oath of office, conforming to the conditions of eligibility prescribed by that section, and this in fact was done by several of the District Commanders—in this district by General Orders No. 9 of April 5, 1867—and these oaths continued in force until they were superseded by the oath required by the law of July 19, 1867. That law placed the subject beyond the discretion and control of the District Commander, and he cannot now prescribe or adopt any different oath without disregarding or annulling a positive and controlling law. I have heretofore held and do now hold that the approval by Congress of any proposed constitution makes it a part of the Reconstruction laws, and to the extent that Congress directs or authorizes any section under it in advance of the admission of the State, dispenses with the provisions of any previous laws that conflict with it. In all other respects the Constitutions and the Governments organized under them remained inoperative until all the conditions of restoration were satisfied. It has been suggested recently that this decision is in conflict with a decision made by the General of the Army in relation to the State of Georgia, on the 2d of March, 1868. The only decision of that date which I have been able to find relates to the State of Florida, and is in reply to a specific inquiry as to the qualifications of voters for offices under the Constitution, "and to take office on the adoption of the Constitution," and the answer is to be interpreted by the decision of Jan. 13, 1868, that "the Governments elected cannot assume authority except under the orders of the District Commander, or after action of Congress on their Constitutions." The decision in relation to Georgia is dated on the 29th of April, 1868. It is similar in import, and refers to the dispatch of March 2, and this has probably led to the confusion of dates. It is in answer to a communication from the Commander of the Third Military District, and applies directly and apparently exclusively to the second paragraph of General Orders No. 61, Third Military District, of May 15, 1868, which provides that "inasmuch as said General Assembly, should the Constitution now submitted to the people of the State be ratified by them, and be approved by Congress, is required to convene and adopt the proposed amendment to the Constitution designated as Article Fourteen before the State can be admitted to representation in Congress," it may be decided that the members of the said General Assembly are, while taking this preliminary action, officers of a Provisional Government, and, as such, required under the ninth section of the act of Congress of July 19, 1867, to take the "test oath."

This decision must also be interpreted by the decision of Jan. 13, and this I apprehend to be the proper rule of interpretation of all the correspondence upon this subject, as I have been unable to find any case in which the inquiry and answer did not relate to the status of these officers after the approval by Congress of the Constitution under which they were elected. The law of June 25, 1868, approving the Constitutions of several States, and authorizing specific action under them, was regarded by me as dispensing with the oath of office prescribed by the law of July 2, 1862, first as to the members of the General Assembly, and, after the ratification of the Constitutional Amendment, to the other State officers duly elected and qualified under those Constitutions. This construction, in the first application, did not include the Governor and Lieutenant-Governer, but as the organization of the Legislature would have been incomplete without the Lieutenant-Governor, and as the legislative action required by the law might have been embarrassed by the action of the old incumbent, the General of the Army directed that they should be removed and the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor elect should be appointed in their places. They were so appointed in North and South Carolina, qualified under their military appointment, and after the ratification of the Constitutional Amendment, again qualified under the Constitutions of their States.

The action taken in the first case was approved, and in the second, directed, by the General of the Army. It has also been suggested that the Reconstruction laws are silent as to the qualification of officers to be elected under the proposed constitutions, and of voters at such elections, and that the laws under which the decision has been made are in conflict with the recent legislation of Congress (act of April 10, 1869) and with the fourteenth article of the amendments to the Constitution of the United States. The question with regard to the qualification of voters was raised in the case of the (then) proposed constitution of the State of Florida, and was settled by the second section of the law of March 13, 1868, which provides "That the Constitutional Conventions of any of the States named in the acts to which this is amendatory, may provide that at the time of voting upon the ratification of the Constitution, the registered voters may vote also for members of the House of Representatives of the United States and for all elective offices provided by said Constitution." The voters at the election to be held in this State for members of the General Assembly, State officers and members of Congress under the authority of the second section of the law of April 10, 1869, are determined by the first section of that law to be the voters of said State registered at the date of said submission (of the Constitution) for ratification or rejection. The qualification of the officers rests upon the same basis, and must be governed by the Reconstruction laws until the Constitution becomes the controlling law, and this does not obtain until it has been approved by Congress. Over the remaining suggestions the District Commander has no control, and the question whether the laws are or are not in conflict with the Constitution must be determined by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

ED. R. S. CANBY, Brevet Major-General, Commanding.

POLITICAL.

It is intimated that VALLANDIGHAM is not very enthusiastically in favor of General ROSECRANS as the Democratic candidate for Governor of Ohio. VALLANDIGHAM made the acquaintance of ROSECRANS under unfavorable, not to say unhappy, circumstances.

A Labor Reform Convention will be held at Harmony Grove, Framingham, Mass., on Monday next, and it will be addressed by Senator SPRAGUE of Rhode Island, and others.

Hon. W. H. WADSWORTH, of Kentucky; Governor MORTON, of Indiana; Judge BINGHAM, of Ohio, and Colonel RUMSEY WING, the Republican candidate for State Treasurer, are to speak in various parts of Kentucky, at the invitation of the Republican State Central Committee.

The Baltimore American devotes an article to the "Maryland Republican disorganizers." It says the party is as compact and solid in its organization as that of any State in the Union, and it rebukes a "handful of disorganizers, under the lead of Judge BOND," who, it asserts, having heretofore failed in their evil efforts, are now at work, in view of the early adoption of the Fifteenth Amendment, endeavoring to sow discord among the colored Republicans. It says further, that secret colored associations are being formed in Baltimore and throughout the State, "pledged to the support of the leader of this disorganizing faction, without regard to what party may nominate for position," and it mentions in its connection that Judge CHASE was dined and wined in Baltimore on the eve of his departure for the South.

The Tennessee State Journal, STOKES' new organ at Nashville, opens its first number by saying that "Truth crushed to earth won't stay crushed, because the eternal years of God are here." The Banner, commenting on this, says that the ex-rebels have "waited four eternal years for enfranchisement, and if truth crushed to earth fails to rise again this Summer we shall give her up."

Senator O'DONNELL has published a reply to the decision of Attorney-General CHAMPLAIN to the effect that a license to sell ale and beer requires no bond that they shall not be drank on the premises. Mr. O'DONNELL contends for a strict interpretation of the law, asserting that its intention is clearly set forth in first paragraph, and that a fair judicial construction is that the amendment simply enlarged the powers of Boards of Excise so as to cover a class of licenses not embraced in the original statute, but leaving "all the provisions" and restrictions regulating the granting of the same, that apply to the other class of licenses, in full force, except that the amount to be paid for the new class of licenses is committed, within the limit of ten to one hundred dollars, to the discretion of the Commissioners of Excise.

Northern Iowa, it is said, favors the election of Congressman WILLIAM B. ALLISON to the United States Senate, as successor of Mr. GRIMES.

Hon. JOSEPH SEGAR writes to the Norfolk Journal that no consideration whatever can induce him to withdraw as a candidate for Congress at large in Virginia, and he publishes a letter from ALEX. H. H. STUART indorsing him.

Hon. JOSEPH SEGAR predicts that Colonel WALKER will be elected Governor of Virginia by 40,000 majority.

Upon the recommendation of the Conservative State Committee, Dr. T. J. PRETLOW, candidate for Congress at large in Virginia, has withdrawn.

The Lewiston (Me.) Journal sees in the resolutions of the recent Republican Convention an assurance that hereafter in that State no person can claim to be a Republican, and above all no one can ask the suffrages of Republicans, unless in favor of prohibition and its vigorous execution by whatever means shall be necessary to that end.

The following are the official returns of the late election in Tennessee for Judges of the Supreme Court at the office of the Secretary of State: HAWKINS, 28,577: ANDREWS, 19,547; MCCLAIN 20,180; SHACKELFORD, 3,656; NELSON, 10,895.

The call for the Woman's Suffrage State Convention, to be held at Saratoga Springs on the 13th and 14th of July, says its specific business will be to effect a permanent organization for the State. Each Congressional district is requested to send six delegates, and it is announced that the Convention will be attended by the ablest advocates of suffrage for women. The call says: "Every woman in the State who is interested for her personal freedom should attend this Convention, and by her presence, influence and money aid the movement for the restoration of the alienated rights of her sex."

Hon. JOHN COVODE has been selected as Chairman of the Pennsylvania Republican State Central Committee, and will devote the whole of his time to the duties of the position. The headquarters of the Committee will be established in Philadelphia.

Speaking of the November election in Massachusetts, the Newburyport Herald says:

"It will be decided mainly on local issues—the liquor and labor questions; and the choice of members of the Legislature will be somewhat influenced by the Senatorial election to be had. General WILSON'S time is about expiring, and a desire for re-election, but it is very doubtful if he can succeed against General BUTLER, who is prominently before the people for that position. It is said, however, in regard to the Senatorial election, that Governor CLAFLIN, who, perhaps, would have had no tears to shed if R. H. DANA, Jr., had been elected to Congress from this district, prefers the reëlection of Senator WILSON, and, because of his interest in this matter, it is not decided that he will vacate the Governor's seat to be Member of Congress from the Lowell district, which personally he would much prefer. If he consults his own wishes, then JOHN LORING will be the Republican candidate for Governor, and receive the support of the Knights of St. Crispin, who may otherwise be found in the support of JOHN QUINCY ADAMS."

EX-SENATOR WADE.

His Arrival in San Francisco—What he Says of the Pacific Railroad and California.

Hon. BENJAMIN F. WADE and Hon. ROSCOE CONKLING reached San Francisco on Sunday evening, 20th inst. A reporter of the Chronicle of that city promptly had an interview with Mr. WADE, and tells the results as follows:

We found Mr. WADE an exceedingly pleasant type of the American gentleman of the old school. He received us very cordially, and in reply to our inquiries informed us that, being one of the Government Directors of the Union Pacific Railroad, he had concluded to examine that road, to see whether it was well constructed or the reverse, as the stories about it were so conflicting that he could not tell which to believe. Having arranged with a party of friends, and being provided with one of Pullman's palace cars, they made the trip to Promontory Point so pleasantly and with so little fatigue, that, on the invitation of the officers of the Central Pacific Road, they concluded to make the trip to the Pacific.

Mrs. WADE informed us that the party only traveled during the day, and the cars being divided into sections and fitted up with every convenience, it was almost like being at home. She stated that the refreshments provided at the various stations were equal to those furnished at any of the stations on the Eastern lines, and assured us that she was no more fatigued after her 3,000 miles ride than if she had only been on an ordinary excursion.

We inquired whether they found the roads in good condition.

Mr. WADE said that both the Union and Central Pacific lines were as substantially built and as smooth to ride on as any line in the Union.

We inquired on which line they thought the greatest difficulties had to be overcome.

Mr. WADE thought the Central Pacific Company had accomplished marvels in carrying their road over the Sierra Nevada, and both himself and lady were enthusiastic in their praises of the magnificent scenery about Donner Lake and the American River. Mrs. WADE thought there was no scenery in the world to compare to that in these places in grandeur or beauty, and Mr. WADE said that he was astonished to find himself gliding along in perfect security on the edge of a precipice thousands of feet deep. We asked him what he thought of that portion of California through which he had passed. He said the wheat fields, vineyards and orchards astonished him by their extent and the fineness of their product. He said he had long felt a desire to see the wheat fields of California, about which he had heard so much, and he was pleased to say that their beauty exceeded anything of the kind he had ever seen. We inquired what he thought of the tule lands. He said that these lands, if reclaimed, would, he thought, be the most valuable in the State. He said that he was astonished to find the people of California refusing to accept greenbacks. Mrs. WADE stated that she could travel all over the Union with the national currency till she came to California, where she had to sell her greenbacks and buy gold in order to pay her traveling expenses, and she laughed heartily at the idea of California using gold. She assured us that she had not seen a ten-dollar gold piece for years till she came to this State. We inquired how long they intended to remain in California. They informed us that they intended to visit all the most famous places in the State, including the Big Trees and the Yosemite, and should probably remain here for about a month.

The following are the members of the party who accompany Mr. WADE and his lady: Hon. ROSCOE CONKLING, of Utica, N. Y.; General H. V. BOYINGTON, of Ohio; Dr. L. W. RODGERS, of New-York; H. HOPKINS, W. H. PRENTICE and wife, and several others whose names we could not learn.

MISSISSIPPI.

Platform of the Liberal Republicans.

The State Convention of the Conservative Republicans of Mississippi, which was held in Jackson on the 23d inst., unanimously adopted the following platform:

Resolved, That this Convention now proceed to organize the National Union Republican Party of the State of Mississippi.

Resolved, That we express our unfalterable devotion to the great principles of the National Union Republican Party, and that we look forward with hope and confidence to the early restoration of our State Government in accordance with the Reconstruction laws of the Congress of the United States.

Resolved, That the repeated failures of all former and existing organizations to restore the State and to meet the requirements of the Republican spirit of our institutions by insisting upon measures of proscription far exceeding the provisions of the Constitution of the United States and of the Reconstruction acts of Congress, have rendered them unworthy of the respect and confidence of the voters of Mississippi.

Resolved, That in the language of President GRANT, "the question of suffrage is one which is likely to agitate the public so long as a portion of the citizens of the nation are excluded from its privileges in any State;" and therefore we sincerely favor the addition of the proposed Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Resolved, That we deprecate any attempt to impose upon the people of this State any greater disabilities than the Constitution and laws of the United States already recognize; and that it shall be the duty of all good citizens to use every effort to obliterate the animosities of the past, and to unite in the restoration of a State Government based on the equal rights, civil and political, of men of every race.

Resolved, That we express our thanks to the President and the Congress of the United States for rejecting the scheme to impose the rejected Constitution upon the people of this State and affirm our unwavering support of the administration of General GRANT.

Resolved, That we announce ourselves unqualifiedly in favor of universal suffrage, and universal amnesty upon the restoration of the State to her Federal relations, and pledge ourselves in good faith to urge upon Congress the removal of all political disabilities incurred by participation in the late rebellion.

Resolved, That the State Executive Committee be authorized and instructed to issue, in behalf of this Convention, an address to the people of this State, declaratory of the principles and sentiments of the National Union Republican Party of Mississippi.

Resolved, That the State Executive Committee be authorized and instructed to issue a call for a State Convention, composed of delegates representing the different counties of the State, to meet at such time and place as they may deem expedient, for the purpose of nominating a State and Congressional ticket.

PERSONAL.

The names of Judge CAMPBELL, of Detroit, Rev. Dr. HEDGE, of Cambridge, Mass., and Rev. T. W. HIGGINSON, of Newport, R. I., have been mentioned in connection with the office of President of Michigan University, made vacant by the resignation of Dr. HAVEN.

The venerable Bishop MORRIS, senior Bishop of the Methodist Church, has just celebrated his silver wedding at Springfield, Ohio.

Rev. Dr. BACON, of Yale College, preached the Baccalaureate sermon at the annual exercises of Phillips Academy, Andover, on Sunday last.

The Boston Journal says of the just appointed Board of Railroad Commissioners for Massachusetts:

Mr. JAMES C. CONVERSE is a merchant of this city, formerly President of the Board of Trade, and noted for his sagacity and integrity. EDWARD APPLETON is a civil engineer, and is spoken of as a man possessing excellent qualifications for his position. CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, Jr., has made the railroad system a study, and has written with ability in the North American Review upon the subject. Some of the theories advanced by him will now be put to a practical test, but it is barely possible that Mr. ADAMS may find that it is easier to criticise radical errors than to reform the evils of the system.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

Yesterday was bright and clear, rather warm, but otherwise just the kind of a day for a country sale, and it was well improved.

At Rahway, N. J., Messrs. JOHNSON & MILLER had an extensive sale. The train left promptly at 12 o'clock, carrying perhaps nine hundred persons. Arriving at the grounds a fine lunch was found, which was well patronized, after which the sale commenced. Mr. JOHNSON has established quite a reputation as a quick-witted, sharp-eyed auctioneer, well adapted to become a public favorite, and already quite popular. He was in excellent humor yesterday, as an auctioneer should be, when surrounded by so large a crowd of interested ladies and gentlemen—for there were many ladies present—and knocked down the lots rapidly and at very fair prices.

The hot weather of the past few days, and the near approach of the time when out-of-town sales shall end for the season, seem to have stirred the people up afresh, and it is quite probable that during the few weeks which will elapse before the Summer vacation, the attendance will be good and the prices satisfactory. The great majority have, of course, been supplied, yet there are quite a respectable number of persons left who are yet ready to purchase, if they think they see a bargain. From now, therefore, until the middle of next month the chances for good sales are very fair; after that it will be too hot, and the people will have too generally made their arrangements for the Summer to make it advisable to have many more sales. Earlier in the season people were quite anxious to buy; now, so much property has been offered, of all kinds and descriptions, that their appetites are a little dull, the edge is worn off, they have become quite fastidious, and property requires to be particularly attractive to command anything like good prices. There are a few sales yet to come off which deserve attention. They are not now, though ready, to be made known. As soon as they are, our readers will be fully informed as to the value, convenience and desirability of the property.

First Mortgage Seven per Cent. GOLD BONDS,

PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST PAYABLE IN GOLD AT THE FARMERS' LOAN AND TRUST COMPANY, NEW-YORK, COUPONS PAYABLE APRIL AND OCTOBER.

FREE OF GOVERNMENT TAX.

These Bonds are convertible into stock at par, at the option of the holder, and may be registered in the name of the owner at any time, if desired.

Length of road, 117 5-100 miles; total amount of bonds, $2,000,000, averaging less than $18,000 per mile, the bonds being secured by a First Mortgage on the whole road, equipment and entire property of the Company.

This road runs east and west on the line of the principal and oldest emigrant wagon road in the State, passing through several populous towns and cities, and the richest agricultural district in Illinois, which will furnish local business sufficient to make it a first-class paying road; while with its connections with many principal lines its through trade must be such as to make it one of the most profitable in the country. A glance at a map will convince any one that the prospects of this road are most promising.

The whole line has been graded at a cost of $1,200,000, which has been paid with funds realized from stock subscriptions, and is now ready for the rails, which are being rapidly put down. The whole road will be completed early the coming Fall.

We offer a limited number of these bonds at 95 and accrued interest in currency, and recommend them as a safe and profitable investment.

THE NEW DOMINION.

Adjournment of Parliament—Negira of the Governor-General—Canadian Government, Past and Present—Settlement of the Northwest—The Royal Canadian Bank—Dominion Day—An Indigrant Politician.

From Our Own Correspondent.

TORONTO, Saturday, June 26, 1869.

The assembled wisdom of the Dominion can hear dispersed, and the session, which was rather an eventful one, is at an end. The session of last year was longer, but by no means so important, for measures of the utmost weight have been considered and disposed of, some of them to the entire satisfaction of the country, while others have excited a good deal of angry criticism. The Government had a clear course before them, and it must be admitted, agreeably disappointed their opponents by the readiness with which they brought on their measures. The impression prevailed that they were quite unprepared at the commencement of the session, and that much time would be wasted in waiting the convenience of the Government. Such was not the case, however, for no time was lost; in fact Parliament worked harder in the last session than it was ever known to do before, and the result is a very gratifying record indeed. Newfoundland and the Hudson's Bay country have virtually been admitted into the Union, and the Queen's Proclamation is all that is needed to ratify the action of Parliament. Nova Scotia has received its "better terms," and even Prince Edward Island has been shown that if she desires to join the Confederation, she can do so with much advantage.

NEGIRA OF THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

It is understood that Sir JOHN YOUNG will spend the Summer in visiting the lower Provinces, and residing part of the time at Spencer Wood, the old Government residence at Quebec, His Excellency is, doubtless, tired enough of his residence at Rideau Hall, Ottawa, for there is really nothing to attract any one to such a place. He had an invitation from Quebec some time since, but the Corporation was mean enough to refuse the necessary funds for entertaining him, and he will, therefore, go on his own responsibility, as the Government are fitting up Spencer Wood for him. It may be as well to mention that Sir JOHN YOUNG has been greatly overrated. He is not a man of any particular ability; an fact he is quite an ordinary person, and in no way calculated to shine as an administrator. The good, easy-going man found willing sycophants on his arrival in this country, who not only praised him as a man of wonderful ability, but led the public to believe that he was a gentleman of fabulous wealth, his wife having a very large fortune independently of Sir JOHN'S riches. It is quite evident that the Governor-General is either not rich, or he is a miser, for no man of such reported wealth would accept the position he has taken. Canada is proverbial for its poor Governors. Lord ELGIN made money by selling the manure heaps from his stable; Sir EDMUND HEAD had been a Poor Law Commissioner in England, and lived from hand to mouth in this country, while Lord MONCK has had to accept the Presidency of a Cable Telegraph Company, and a commissionership under the Government in England. It is not clear that Sir JOHN is any richer than his predecessors; at all events he does nothing to show that he is wealthy. It was said that Lady YOUNG was disgusted to find that Rideau Hall could not afford a ball-room, as she was anxious to squander lots of money; but, she got the ball-room, and only a single ball has been given during the six or eight months she has been in the country. Sir JOHN YOUNG'S absence from Ottawa will not be seriously felt; to be sure there is a grocer who advertised that he was to be purveyor to His Excellency, and probably his exchequer may suffer on account of this freak on the part of Her Majesty's representative, who is determined to visit other parts of the Dominion and remain away from the capital some three months or so.

SETTLEMENT OF THE NORTHWEST.

Now that we may say we have acquired the vast territory which was shut out from civilization by that grasping set of monopolists known as the Hudson's Bay Company, its settlement has become a subject of discussion, and a large sum of money has been voted by Parliament to open up a line of communication, starting at the head of Lake Superior. But that is not all; our people are not going to be satisfied with a common road leading into the interior of the new country, for it is actually proposed to build a railroad, which would unquestionably be a rival line to the Pacific Road, as it would start from a point on the Ottawa River, forming a connection with the Grand Trunk; and the project once decided on, would speedily become a continuous line to some point on the Pacific. The shortness of the route recommends the project, but engineers say it would cost $100,000,000, evidently an exaggerated estimate; but even if it were to cost that much, there is no reason to doubt that English capital would be found for the purpose. The question of settling the new country becomes one of the greatest importance, and it is within the range of probability that a railroad may be constructed in the course of the next ten years connecting the Atlantic with the Pacific, and running wholly through British territory. Depend upon it, Canadian enterprise has received a fresh stimulus from the extension of the boundaries of the Dominion, and its people begin to see that it is time they entered the lists with their enterprising neighbors, the Americans, or they will be so far left behind in the march of progress that they might as well never have attempted to unite the whole of British North America into a great confederacy.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN BANK.

A meeting of delegates in connection with this bank was held in this city yesterday, when a highly satisfactory statement of the bank's affairs was submitted. The understanding is that specie payments will be resumed after the annual meeting, which takes place on the 5th proximo. If matters had been properly managed the bank need never had suspended. Of course a new set of directors will be chosen, and the strictest supervision be observed in future. Dissension in the directory was the cause of all the difficulty that has come upon the bank, and a change is therefore imperatively demanded. The shareholders will be satisfied with nothing short of an entire change, and it is even said that the chief manager is to be dispensed with.

DOMINION DAY.

The second anniversary of the confederation of the Provinces into a Dominion is to be celebrated on Thursday next with all the "pomp and circumstance" the people can muster. Every village, town and city is preparing for the event, and the celebration will be far in advance of the last Queen's Birthday. Having long since borrowed a leaf on demonstrations from the Americans, our people can make a very creditable show when it suits them to do so, and they are certainly determined this time to take the shine out of the Fourth of July in their observance of the 1st. It is rather a proud boast for some Canadians that their grand national holiday is three days in advance of "Independence Day." The demonstration of Thursday will be every way worthy the occasion, and the turn-out of military and citizens will be very great. The preparations are on the most extensive scale, and although Dominion Day is not a legal holiday, the Governor-General has issued his proclamation calling upon the people to make it such. Excursions are the order of the day, but in some places there will be racing, processions, cornerstone laying and numerous other things to attract the thousands who will be bent on enjoying themselves on that day.

AN INDIGNANT POLITICIAN.

As Mr. MALCOLM CAMERON, one of the candidates for the vacant seat in the House of Commons was known as a full-blown Coalitionist, it was naturally supposed that having issued a non-committal address to the electors of Renfrew, he desired to enter Parliament as a ministerial supporter in disguise, and most of the journals throughout the country put him down as such. He demurs, however, and in a telegram sent to the Globe of this city, yesterday, he characterizes the statement of that journal to such an effect—"A foundationless lie," and says, "I take my seat in Opposition decidedly." He is not yet elected, and report says not likely to be; therefore it is somewhat premature to say he takes his seat. It matters little what declaration Mr. CAMERON may make, if he is elected he will soon become Ministerial. No doubt he feels sorely annoyed at being thrown out of between $6,000 and $10,000 as Queen's Printer, but he has a poor chance of taking it out in revenge, as the Government will care little for a worn-out politician.

A Little Girl Attacked by a Snake.

From the Boston Journal, June 29.

An exciting and dangerous encounter with a snake took place in Canterbury, N. H., a few days ago. NELLIE DODGE, aged about 6 years, a daughter of Mr. JAMES DODGE, a substantial farmer in Canterbury, accompanied by another little girl about the same age as herself, went out into a field near Mr. DODGE'S house in the afternoon to gather strawberries. They had wandered but a short distance when NELLIE accidentally tred upon something in the deep grass, and instantly a large black snake sprung up at her, and immediately commenced to wind itself around her legs. Enraged at having been trodden upon, the snake lifted its head and showed its anger by its protruding tongue and flashing eyes. The child thus in danger was nearly overcome with fright; but her companion, with a presence of mind seldom exhibited by one of her age, quickly found two sticks, and giving one to NELLIE, they both commenced an attack upon the reptile. Again enraged, the snake endeavored to wind himself closer and higher upon the body of the child, and succeeded in biting her three times severely before he was driven away. The child was assisted home by her companion, and is now under the care of a physician. One of her limbs is badly swollen and inflamed, but she will probably recover.

From the description given by the children of the snake, there is no doubt but that it was of the variety of the black snake popularly known as the "Racer." This kind grows to the length of seven and sometimes eight feet, has a white ring around its neck, and when running carries its head erect from six to eight inches above the ground. The children spoke particularly of the "white string tied around its neck," meaning its ring. They spoke of it as being what to them seemed a fabulous size, and said that when it ran off it kept its head up in the air and looked back at them. The bite of the snake is not venomous, but is injurious.

THE OCEAN BANK ROBBERY.

No Suspicion Attaching to any Employe of the Bank—The Insecurity of Combination Locks Demonstrated.

No new developments have occurred with respect to the astounding robbery of the Ocean Bank, corner of Greenwich and Fulton streets, the particulars of which were printed in the TIMES of yesterday. A statement appeared in one of the morning journals, which, if allowed to go uncontradicted, tends to throw suspicion on the porter of the bank, as well as to render the officers of the institution amenable to a charge of carelessness with regard to the regulations adopted to provide for the safety of the deposits. It was averred that the inner and outer doors of the vault were closed on Saturday by the porter, ALEXANDER, and that, in locking the outer door, he was careful to prove it, turning the combination, and then seeing if it would work accurately. Also, that the key to the lock on the second door hung under the lintel, and that, by means of it, the second door was readily opened. This whole statement the President of the bank declares to be without the least foundation in fact. There is no porter named ALEXANDER connected with the bank; the porter of the establishment is never intrusted with a knowledge of the combination,—in fact, knows nothing about it. The combination is known only to the President and one other officer of the institution, and care has always been taken to prevent a knowledge of it extending to any other person, and it was known to none other, so far as these two are aware, on Saturday last. The key to the inner door did not hang under the lintel, nor was it exposed to view in any part of the vault; so that the modus operandi by which an entrance was effected by the burglars remains as much a mystery as ever. It may be said, however, as going to show what appears to be the insecurity of the combination lock on this vault, that an expert locksmith, Wm. F. ENSIGN, a manufacturer of safes, of this City, called at the bank yesterday and offered to pick the combination lock on the outer door, if permission were granted him to operate. The door was thereupon locked, the combination being known only to the President, and, sure enough, Mr. ENSIGN did open it, and with comparative facility. This lock has 200 numbers on the dial, thus allowing for millions of combinations. Hitting upon the exact conjunction of numbers by which the lock may be opened, (the changes therein being made at the will of the party who locks the door,) may, therefore, be set down as a simple impossibility; but that there is a plan by which this seeming difficulty may be overcome without injuring the lock is made fully apparent, both from the operations of the burglars as well as from the undeniable proof of that fact given by Mr. ENSIGN. That gentlemen said, yesterday, that the means by which the unlocking is done are so simple that he could, in fifteen minutes' time, teach any person of ordinary capacity how to perform the operation. That the burglars who entered the Ocean Bank were cognizant of this means admits of no doubt; in fact, the manner in which the robbery was accomplished, from beginning to end, shows that the parties engaged in it were thoroughly trained in every particular of their nefarious business, and were possessed of far more than ordinary expertness at their unlawful trade.

Further Particulars in Regard to the Losses.

The excitement over the daring burglary in the Ocean Bank did not seem to be much abated yesterday, judging from the scenes near the bank. The officers were engaged all day in making up a list of the losses sustained by their depositors. These lists are not quite complete, but they indicate that the aggregate value of the plunder carried off by the burglars is fully $500,000. The detectives selected by the Police Superintendent to work up the case, have commenced their investigations, though they seem quite appalled at the difficulties which meet them at every step. The headquarter detectives, besides a large number of the ward "shadows" made pilgrimages to the plundered bank yesterday, where they were shown the wrecked vaults and safes by the officials, with a faint hope that the sight might be of service to the officers. As each detective examined the rifled safes he made a sage guess or two at the personal of the perpetraters of the burglary, and it was rather amusing to observe the wide range these surmises took, as scarcely any well-known professional "cracksman" escaped being credited with the robbery.

During yesterday afternoon the bank officials had a long and private interview with Superintendent KENNEDY, when it is understood they agreed upon a plan of operation, which will necessitate a change in the detectives engaged on the case. Superintendent KENNEDY also advised the employment of private detectives; and under his suggestion the bank will offer large rewards for the recovery of the bonds.

Ex-Captain JOHN S. YOUNG is understood to be engaged in the case, as several of the depositors of the bank have given him authority to endeavor to secure the return of their property. As the matter now stands, the detectives, whether Metropolitan or independent, are completely at sea, and it will require several days' hard work before they can gain a clue to the thieves who so successfully and coolly robbed the Ocean Bank.

The Suicide of Young Kolb at Newark—Various Reports as to the Cause of the Act.

The suicide by shooting, yesterday, of HERMAN KOLB, a well-known young German gentleman of Newark, whose father, CHARLES KOLB, is an extensive brewer, has caused much excitement, especially among the German residents of that city.

Dr. DODD, the county physician, being notified, visited the residence of Mr. KOLB, Sr., at No. 26 Freeman-street, for the purpose of investigating the case. He found the deceased in bed, lying upon his back with his arms folded across his breast, and in his right hand was a seven-barrel revolver with one barrel discharged, and his finger still upon the trigger. Extending the examination further, the doctor found a small bullet hole in the right temple, and inserting a probe, it traversed the entire brain transversely. The doctor interrogated the father of deceased, who appeared to be deeply affected by his loss, but could elicit nothing. All that he knew was, that his son was at New-York the day previous, and coming home in the evening, passed over the money collected to the bookkeeper; father and son were engaged in conversation until 10 P. M., when the latter retired. A noise was heard about 10:30 o'clock, but was supposed to be the falling of a mosquito net. Mr. KOLB went out but found nothing wrong. He saw a light in HERMAN'S room, and passing into the room, and finding his son, as he supposed, asleep, he put the light out. Yesterday morning HERMAN not rising as early as usual, his mother visited his room and endeavored to awake him, when she found him to be dead. Dr. DODD, from the investigations made, being satisfied that it was a case of suicide, decided that an inquest was unnecessary, and accordingly granted a certificate for burial.

Chess Tournament.

Over three hundred games out of nine hundred have been played by the contestants in the chess tournament at the Cafe Europa, Division-street. The contest will last some four weeks longer, and the following are the most prominent scores: Captain MACKENZIE won 22, lost 3; Mr. MASON won 18, lost 6; Major WERNICH won 26, lost 9; M. PERRIN won 16, lost 9; Mr. FRANKENBERG won 16, lost 3; Mr. DELMAR won 26, lost 13.

THE TURF.

The Prospect Park Races—Second Day.

The racing at Prospect Park, under the auspices of the American Jockey Club, is renewed to-day, and the programme promises a capital day's sport. The racing on Saturday last, the first day of the meeting, was unusually fine, and to-day the prospect is equally flattering. There are five races on the card, commencing with a handicap sweepstakes of $50 each, half forfeit, with $600 added, one mile and a quarter. There are nineteen entries, and the starters will be Metairie, 116 pounds; Red Dick, 113 pounds; Lizzie Rogers, 104 pounds; Fanny Ludlow, 106 pounds, and General Duke, 114 pounds. Taxation in Brooklyn.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

An article in your issue of Sunday, the 27th, is calculated to give a wrong impression in relation to the recent addition of 25 per cent. to the assessed valuation of real estate in this city. No one can regret more sincerely than I do the increasing expenses of municipal government in these two great cities, but the facts are bad enough without drawing on fancy.

What you call a "fictitious valuation" is justified by the actual increase of value in real estate in this city. Our valuation, even with this increase, does not approximate the value of real estate as nearly as the assessed value of New-York City property. Nor (even with the almost total absence of corporate capital) is our tax proportionately so large as yours.

Take for example a single instance, and I cite a single instance because your columns are too crowded to take more.

My friend owns a house in New-York, the assessed valuation of which is $25,000; its real market value is $50,000—the rate of taxation last year was 2¾ per cent., or $656 20—in other words about 1½ per cent. of the market value.

My house, in Brooklyn, was assessed at $7,000—its real value is $25,000, the rate of taxation was about 3¾, or $225—in other words about one per cent. of the market value.

As for "annexation to New-York," Brooklyn is rather proud than otherwise of her big brother over the river, as a brother. She is glad enough to meet him in the day time as a playmate, but she wants to retire to her own virtuous couch at night, and don't want a bedfellow in place of a playfellow. Yours, J. W. H.

College of the City of New-York—Contest for the Kelly Medals.

The debate between graduates of the College of the City of New-York, for the Kelly medals, took place last evening, at Irving Hall. It was conducted by six members of the Phrenocosmian Society and six of the Clionian Society. The question discussed was, "Should free education be restricted to the elementary branches thereof?" The affirmative was taken by the students of the former organization, consisting of THOMAS MILLER, MATTHEW C. JULIEN and EDWARD MORSE SHEPARD, and the negative by those of the latter, including EDWARD L. MATTHEWS, PETER J. KELLY and JAS. C. SHEFFIELD. These societies are of recent origin in the College, and have proved very useful in stimulating logical thought and facility of expression. The judges of the debate were Messrs. JAMES W. GERARD, ANDREW MILLS, NELSON J. WATERBURY, PETER COOPER and JOSEPH A. HARPER. Their decision will not be made known until to-morrow evening, when it will be presented after the Commencement exercises. There was a large attendance on the occasion.

Vaccination Completed.

The Sanitary Superintendent informs us that the work of vaccination recently undertaken by the Board of Health, in this City, will be completed to-day. The method of operation pursued by the vaccinating officers has been fully given in the TIMES. It has been most thorough and satisfactory. Very little opposition was manifested anywhere, and this enabled the surgeons to do their work speedily. The City may now be said to be proof against the dread distemper of small-pox.

Dedication of the New Rooms of New-York Lodge No. 330 F. and A. M.

Last evening the new rooms of New-York Lodge No. 330, F. and A. M., in Booth's Theatre building, were opened and dedicated. The Grand Officers of the State of New-York were present, the Grand Master being represented by his Deputy, JOHN ANTHON, Esq. The Lodge-rooms front on Sixth-avenue. The principal apartment is spacious and lofty, and is furnished in very handsome style. After the dedication ceremonies had closed the W. M., J. R. ELSEY, was agreeably surprised by being made the recipient of a splendid testimonial of the respect and affection felt for him by the members of the Lodge in the shape of a costly Jules Jurgensen watch and chain. As every member of the Lodge had contributed toward the purchase of the testimonial, its value as a memorial was thereby enhanced. After Mr. ELSEY had replied in a neat speech of thanks for the honor done him, all present adjourned to the supper-room and partook of the handsome collation provided for them.

The following are the principal officers of the Lodge: Jas. R. Elsey, M.; Jos. G. Sweeny, S. W.; Samuel Lawrence, J. W.; Wm. W. Paddon, Secretary; Lemuel Valentine, Treasurer; John Giffin, S. D.; Henry A. Meade, J. D.
